

Advanced 1

English Discoveries WORKBOOK

English Discoveries WORKBOOK

Advanced I

A subsidiary of ETS,
the creator of the
TOEFL® and TOEIC® tests

A subsidiary of ETS,
the creator of the TOEFL®
and TOEIC® tests

COPYRIGHT NOTICE

All rights are reserved. No part of these materials may be reproduced, photocopied, transmitted or translated in any form or by any means without permission in writing from Edusoft, Ltd.

Dear Student,

Welcome to the English Discoveries Student Workbook for Advanced 1. Using this workbook will help you practice your English.

Each unit of the workbook corresponds directly to a unit in the English Discoveries Advanced 1 course. After completing a unit within the course, you should complete the corresponding activities in the workbook.

The units in this workbook integrate all four language skills: Listening, Reading, Speaking, and Writing. The workbook units also provide a wide range of grammar and vocabulary activities.

If you want to refer to the computer lesson texts while you are away from your computer, you can find them in the workbook Appendix.

Special emphasis has been given throughout the workbook to speaking and writing activities. You will see that you have many opportunities to express yourself in both spoken and written English.

We hope you enjoy using this program,

The English Discoveries Team

CONTENTS

Unit 1
Cultural Differences

7

Unit 2
Life In The City

19

Unit 3
Dangerous Sports

31

Unit 4
Complaints

43

Unit 5
Business Strategies

55

Unit 6
Communication

67

Unit 7
Medical Issues

79

Unit 8
How Smart Are You?

89

Appendix
Lesson Texts

99

Unit 1

Cultural Differences

Australia

a. Do you remember the video about the Aborigine creation story? Read the sentences below and mark if they are (✓) true or (✗) false.

1. The outback is in Southern Australia.

✓ / ✗

2. The outback makes up more than half of Australia.

✓ / ✗

3. The outback is a silent and untouched area.

✓ / ✗

4. The Aborigine creation myth is complicated.

✓ / ✗

5. A god created the Ancestors from clay.

✓ / ✗

6. The "Songlines" are trails of footprints and songs that were made during creation.

✓ / ✗

b. What do the following underlined pronouns refer to?

1. It seems to lie the outback
2. In the silence of its first creation the outback
3. But I'll try to simplify it the Aboriginal myth
4. Which they call "Dreamtime" the Aborigines
5. The "Ancestors" created themselves from clay the Ancestors
6. They walked about the Ancestors

c. Find a phrase in the text that means:

1. The countryside is not developed.
still and untouched
2. The outback is the same as it was millions of years ago.
lies in the silence of its first creation
3. The creation myth needs to be made easier to understand.
I'll try to simplify it.
4. Paths were created by the Ancestors.
They left trails of footprints and songs
5. These paths have a lot of meaning for the Aborigines.
form a profound part of the Aborigines' religious beliefs.

d. The video voice-over stated: "In the beginning, which they call 'Dreamtime', the 'Ancestors' created themselves from clay." The text uses a non-defining relative clause to give additional information about the beginning of the world. Join the following sentences together using relative clauses and the relative pronoun in brackets.

1. Jupiter decided to flood the Earth. He was angered at the evil ways of humanity. (who)
Jupiter, who was angered at the evil ways of humanity, decided to flood the Earth.
2. The land between the great rivers of Iraq is a rich site for archeologists. Many creation myths of devastating floods come from this area. (where)
The land between the great rivers of Iraq, where many creation myths of devastating floods come from, is a rich site for archaeologists.

3. Creation myths all share some common beliefs. These stories cannot be proven to have actually happened. (which)

Creation myths, which cannot be proven to have actually happened, all share some common beliefs.

4. A famous director has been hired to direct the new movie about the creation of the world. His last movie was "The Parting of the Red Sea." (whose)

A famous director, whose last movie was "The Parting of the Red Sea", has been hired to direct the new movie about the creation of the world.

- e. Read the following text about a Native American Indian creation myth. Then read the extra information below. Add this information to the text in the spaces provided, using relative clauses and relative pronouns.

A Great Flood, (1) which happened a long time ago, devastated everything. The Earth, (2) on which there was no life, was still covered in water. Next the believers, (3) who still tell the story to their children describe an eagle and a crow. The birds, (4) that were the only life on Earth flew around and around looking for a dry place. This place, (5) where a tree stump emerged from the water, was the only place they could land. This old tree, (6) whose surface was big enough for the two birds to survive became the birth place of new life in the world.

1. The Flood happened a long time ago.
2. There was no life on Earth.
3. The Indians still tell this story to their children.
4. The birds were the only life on Earth.
5. A tree stump emerged from the water.
6. The surface was big enough for the two birds to survive.

Culture Crash

a. Order the events in the story.

- 2 a. Everyone noticed him because his behavior was so different and he moved at a very quick pace.
- 1 b. Thirty years ago, Brad Perkins arrived in a town in the South from New York.
- 8 c. Later, Dr. Franklin tried to explain that Brad was not really being rude and that the townspeople had overreacted and were being too sensitive.
- 7 d. Shortly after the dinner, everyone in town knew what had happened and Brad almost had to pack his things and leave.
- 3 e. After a short time in town, Dr. Franklin invited him for dinner.
- 4 f. In addition to Brad, Dr Franklin invited some friends in order to give him a friendly local welcome.
- 6 g. The people at the dinner table reacted very strongly to Brad's lack of courtesy and told everyone in town about his impolite behavior.
- 9 h. The people began to understand that people from the North do not mean to be impolite.
- 5 i. Brad didn't understand the Southern way of life and made a bad mistake by refusing a second helping.

b. The story tells about the clash between two cultures - the North and the South of the U.S.A.

1. In what way do the cultures differ?

2. The writer states that manners, values, and rules of courtesy can be very different. Write an example of one way in which your culture differs from another culture.

3. Why do you think the name of the story is "Culture Crash"?

c. Who do the following statements refer to, Brad Perkins, or Dr. Franklin?

	Brad Perkins	Dr. Franklin
1. Everyone noticed when he came into town.	X
2. He never realized he was offending anyone.	X
3. He is quite reserved.		X
4. The meal caused a problem for him.	X
5. He refused a second helping of food.	X
6. He was more direct than the other people in town.	X

d. Match the sentence in column B to the sentence in column A with a similar meaning.

A	B
1. He came into town like an ambulance on its way to a car crash.	a. Many people were upset by his behavior.
2. Down here, it's considered rude.	b. Soon everyone heard from friends and neighbors what had taken place at Dr. Franklin's house.
3. Everyone took offense.	c. People noticed Brad as soon as he arrived.
4. What happened at the dinner party was broadcast all over town.	d. Dr. Franklin and his local guests were too sensitive and overreacted to Brad's manners and behavior.
5. They went overboard in their reaction.	e. In the South, such behavior is not thought to be polite.
6. "Do you know where the groceries are?."	f. "You might have forgotten them in the store."

1. C 2. E 3. A 4. B 5. D 6. F

e. Brad decided to write a thank-you note to Dr. Franklin. Mark the expressions he could have used in his note.

- 1 1. I'd like the recipe for the delicious cheesecake.
- 3 2. I was very tired after the dinner.
- 4 3. I am sure our friendship will grow after such an evening.
- 5 4. I am writing to thank you for your hospitality last night.
- 7 5. I enjoyed both the food and the company.
- 8 6. I would have preferred going to a restaurant for dinner.
- 10 7. I'd like to invite you and your wife over to our place soon.
- 11 8. I particularly enjoyed the chicken.
- 2 9. Your other guests were quite boring.
- 6 10. I wish to say thank you for an enjoyable evening.
- 9 11. Please give my compliments to the cook.

f. Now write a thank-you note to someone who entertained you at his/her home. Use suitable expressions from activity e.

So Bored!

a. Complete these dialogues by using too and either to express agreement. The first has been done for you.

1. I took a third helping!

I did, too!

2. My friend took a cruise to the Canary Islands last year.

I did, too

3. The people in the cabin next to us are so noisy and rude.

The people in the cabin next to us are, too.

4. I hate all that drinking in the bar.

I can't stand it, either.

5. I love these cruises.

I do, too.

b. Read the following expressions and decide if they express strong agreement or neutral agreement.

Expressions	Strong agreement	Neutral agreement
1. "Absolutely, I couldn't agree more!"	X
2. "I know what you mean..."		X
3. "I completely agree with you."	X
4. "I think you're right."		X
5. "I'm in total agreement."	X

c. Now follow the prompts below to complete this conversation. Use each expression from activity b. only once.

Dr. Franklin: I believe we may have been too strong in our criticism of Brad's behavior.

Mr. Smith: (agree strongly) _____

Mrs. Smith: (agree neutrally) _____

Mrs. Franklin: Perhaps we should invite him to our house again.

Dr. Franklin: (agree strongly) _____

Mr. Smith: Don't you think Brad might be feeling lonely?

Mrs. Smith: (agree neutrally) _____

Dr. Franklin: So since it is decided, we'll ask him to dinner again.

Mrs. Franklin: (agree strongly) _____

Additional Reading

Global Reading

1. Look at the title. Who do you think the article might be describing? People who might be thought to be loud and arrogant

Why do you think there is a question mark? _____

2. Read the first sentence. Who is the article about? _____

What is the purpose of the first sentence? Americans. Don't believe the stereotypes.

3. Read the first paragraph. What is the writer's opinion about stereotypes of Americans?

They may be true about specific Americans, but not about all Americans

4. Read the first sentence of the second paragraph. In what way do you think Americans are more informal? Accept all logical answers

5. Read the first sentence of the third paragraph. Do you think this paragraph will support or contrast with the second paragraph? Contrast

6. Read the last paragraph. What is the writer's purpose?
To advise people to rid themselves of the stereotypes

Close Reading

1. Read the first paragraph again. The marker for example in lines 2-3 signals that the writer will give an example of the main idea. What is the main idea? _____
 What is the example that the writer gives to support the main idea?

That the stereotypes are not true of all individuals. Many Americans are quiet and polite.

2. The marker but in line 5 signals that the writer will present a contrasting idea. What does the writer contrast? Intolerant and xenophobic people and pleasant and welcoming people.

3. The marker likewise in line 7 signals that the writer will compare two similar ideas. What two similar examples does the writer give? the behavior in films and television and the behavior of tourists

4. The helping verb do is sometimes used in positive statements to make a strong point. What point does the writer want to emphasize in line 9? Americans are more informal.

5. The marker nevertheless in line 11 signals that the writer will contrast the previous statement. What two things does the writer contrast? Even though Americans are usually informal, it is best to be polite.

6. If sentences may be used to give advice. What advice does the writer give in line 11?

Be courteous and polite.

7. Phrasal verbs are sometimes confusing. What does the writer mean by dress up and to dress down (line 16)? Which verb means to dress formally? dress up

Which verb means to dress less formally? dress up

Loud and Ignorant?

- 1 Don't believe all of the stereotypes you may have heard about Americans. Even the ones that are true in general may not be true about specific individuals or a large segment of the population. For example, although Americans tend to be louder and more boisterous than people from other cultures (especially at athletic events), many of the people you meet
- 5 will be quiet and polite. Some people may be intolerant and xenophobic, but most will be pleasant and welcoming. Remember that American films and television exaggerate in order to generate excitement, and so present a rather distorted picture of what life in the United States is really like. Likewise, tourists are not always on their best behavior.

- Americans do tend to be more informal than people from other countries. It is common
- 10 for Americans to wear casual clothing to school and to greet professors by their first name. Nevertheless, good manners and politeness are always appropriate. If you are courteous and polite, and dress a little more formally than your American friends, it will only reflect well on you.

- However, there are situations and environments in which formality is the norm. Some businesses require their employees to wear a uniform or a suit. It would be inappropriate to
- 15 wear a T-shirt and blue jeans to a job interview. Some of the more prestigious restaurants require a jacket and tie.

Americans tend to dress up for cultural events (the opera, theater, and ballet) and to dress down for athletic events. Formal wear is required at weddings and funerals, or any other event with religious overtones.

- 20 Rid yourself of any preconceived notions of American behavior before you arrive. If you rely on the stereotypes, you will likely put yourself into an awkward and embarrassing situation and offend your American acquaintances.

www.edupass.org

Comprehension Questions

1. What is the writer's advice?

Rid yourself of stereotypes.

2. According to the writer, what kind of influence does Hollywood have on how non-Americans see life in America?

They give an exaggerated and distorted picture of Americans.

3. In what social situations do Americans dress down?

American dress down for athletic events

4. How many of the stereotypes on the next page do some people have about...

a. Americans?

b. Your culture?

Stereotypes	About Americans	About your culture
• Boastful and arrogant	X
• Disrespectful of authority		X
• Extravagant and wasteful	X
• Generous	X
• Ignorant of other countries and cultures	X
• Informal	X
• Insensitive		X
• Lazy		X
• Loud and obnoxious	X
• Rich and wealthy		X
• Rude and immature	X
• Snobbish	X
• Stingy		X
• Think they know everything		X
• Think every country should imitate the U.S.		X
• Uninformed about politics	X

Clauses of Result: Review

a. Match each of the conditions on the right with an appropriate promise on the left and rewrite them using as long as.

Promises	Conditions
1. I'll invite you to my house...	a.you share her values.
2. Passengers will be able to leave the cruise ship...	b. ...people want to hear them.
3. Creation stories will continue to be told...	c. ...you agree to eat a second helping of my pie.
4. She'll welcome you to her home...	d. ...you promise not to drag me on a cruise again.
5. I'll go on holiday with you...	e. ...they take their passports and tickets with them.

1. C 2. E 3. B 4. A 5. D

1. _____
2. _____
3. _____
4. _____
5. _____

b. Complete the following sentences using either, so, or since.

1. The doctor invited Brad to his house so he could make him feel welcome in town.
2. I bought the tickets since you were busy at work.
3. English speakers are taught how to use politically correct language so they can be more polite.
4. The pilot boat accompanies the cruise ship so that it can get into port safely.
5. The Aborigine child told me about her creation story since I was very interested to learn about their beliefs.

c. Look at the pictures below. Match the pictures to the questions below. There is one more picture than you need.

a.

b.

c.

d.

1. "Now that we've seen the outback, what do we do next?" c
2. "Now that you have finished your first cruise, do you want to go on another one next year?" a
3. "Now that I can hold a tennis racquet the right way, can I play in Wimbledon?" b

Look at the fourth picture. Write your own question for the picture.

Now that I have completed homework _____?

d. Think of something you know how to do well. Write a dialogue between you and a friend who wants to learn something from you. Try to use the expression: "You do this, so as..." and finish with "Now that you can..."

Your friend: How do you _____?

You: _____

Your friend: _____

You: _____

Your friend: _____

You: _____

e. Practice the dialogue with a partner.

Unit 2

Life In The City

A Mystery

a. Do you remember the video? Answer the following questions about it.

1. What is the mystery?

The mystery is the disappearance of Buster the dog.

2. At first, the wife is afraid that what might have happened?

That Buster has been kidnapped

3. What does the wife see that makes her change her mind?

She sees the back door has been left open.

4. What does the wife conclude at the end of the video?

That Buster escaped out the back door.

5. What will the wife do next?

Go to the neighbors to see if he is there.

b. Match the sentence or expression in column B to the sentence or expression in column A that has a similar meaning.

A	B
1. What's going on?	a. People are saying...
2. He's nowhere to be found.	b. It may not be my fault.
3. of course	c. I can't find him anywhere.
4. There's a rumor going around	d. another idea of what happened
5. broken in	e. certainly; obviously
6. different version of events	f. entered without permission
7. I may be innocent.	g. What's happening?

1. g 2. c 3. e 4. a 5. f 6. d 7. b

"Buster, here boy." • "What's going on?" • "Honey, don't get mad."
"Disappearance? What do you mean?" • "I took him for a walk."
"Did you look for him?" • "I looked all over the house." • "I'm really worried!"
"Let's call the police!" • "Wait, before you start calling the police..."

c. The quotes below are taken from the dialogue between the husband and wife. Write the quotation under the person who said it.

Husband	Wife
Buster	What's going on here boy	Disappearance? What do you mean
Honey don't get mad	I took him for a walk
I took him for a walk	Did you look for him? I'm really worried
I looked all over the house	Wait, before you start calling the police Let's call the police!

d. Read the statements below and mark if they are true or false.

Statement	True	False
1. The husband is afraid to tell his wife what happened.	X
2. The wife starts searching the house for Buster.		X
3. The husband lost Buster while he was taking him for a walk.		X
4. Buster is a pedigree dog.	X
5. The husband suggests they call the police.	X
6. The wife thinks the husband is guilty.	X
7. The husband volunteers to go to the neighbors.		X

e. Imagine what might happen next in the video. Write the script for the next scene between the wife and her neighbor.

Wife: _____

Neighbor: _____

Wife: _____

Neighbor: _____

Wife: _____

Neighbor: _____

Wife: _____

Neighbor: _____

Adams Murder Mystery Update

a. Do you remember the text from the computer lesson? Match the facts in column B to the appropriate people in column A.

People	Facts
1. Barbara Adams	a. successful writer
2. Bettina Adams	b. Mr. Adams' first wife
3. Bonnie Adams	c. Mr. Adams' second wife
4. Gregory Adams.	d. She has disappeared.
5. Mira Holmes	e. a former neighbor and film-maker

1. d 2. c 3. b 4. a 5. e

b. Number these events from the story in the correct chronological order.

- 7 a. The police arrested Gregory Adams and charged him with murder.
- 1 b. Gregory Adams married Bonnie, his first wife.
- 4 c. Bettina Adams disappeared.
- 8 d. The murder trial begins tomorrow.
- 6 e. Barbara disappeared on the 5th of January.
- 2 f. Bonnie disappeared.
- 3 g. Gregory Adams married Bettina, his second wife.
- 5 h. Gregory Adams married for the third time.
- 9 i. Gregory hasn't spoken to the newspapers or the TV about his trial.

c. Complete the dialogue with the words and phrases below. There are more choices than you need.

claim • courtroom • innocent • no previous criminal record • on trial • the truth

Lawyer 1: Which (1) courtroom are you working in tomorrow?

Lawyer 2: I'll be appearing before Judge Sparrow. Do you know who is (2) on trial?

Lawyer 1: Don't tell me! Are you representing that famous murder mystery writer?

Lawyer 2: That's right, and although he has attended trials many times to do research for his books, this will be the first time he himself appears before a judge. He has (3) no previous criminal record.

Lawyer 1: But the police (4) claim that he murdered his wife and the film-maker thinks he has murdered twice before.

Lawyer 2: He believes he is (5) innocent.

d. If we have a certain time in the future in mind and we want to say what will happen before that date, we use the Future Perfect (will have done) with by to express the idea. Look through the notes of one of the 12 people who will be on the jury for Mr. Adams' trial. They will decide if he is guilty or innocent. Write down what will have happened at each of the future dates below.

	Learn about what to do
SEPTEMBER	Listen to evidence from the police
OCTOBER	Listen to evidence from Mr. Adams
NOVEMBER	Listen to questions from the judge
DECEMBER	Decide if Mr. Adams is innocent or guilty and give a verdict
JANUARY	Go home and back to regular work

1. By September, they will have listened to evidence from the police.

2. By October, they will have listened to evidence from Mr. Adams

3. By the beginning of November, they will have listened to questions from the judge.

4. By the end of the year, they will have decided if Mr. Adams is innocent or guilty and given a verdict.

5. By January next year, they will have gone home and back to their regular work.

e. Adjectives are used to describe nouns, whereas adverbs are used to describe verbs or other adjectives. Do you remember how Barbara Adams disappeared? She disappeared mysteriously. Choose either an adverb or an adjective from the words in italics.

1. Most of the readers of Gregory Adams' books natural/naturally expect him to be found innocent.
2. Mr. Adams' attitude toward the journalists has been very quiet/quietly.
3. When given the Murder Mysteries Book Prize of the Year, Mr. Adams famous/famously said that he based his stories on real life.
4. Mr. Adams' two former/formerly wives also disappeared.
5. Mr. Adams has never previous/previously been arrested by the police.
6. Barbara's parents are still hopeful/hopefully that she will reappear.
7. The idea that Mr. Adams murdered his wife is wide/widely believed.
8. Do the police have any conclusive/conclusively evidence?
9. Mr. Adams answered the police's questions confident/confidently.
10. Mr. Adams is on trial local/locally.

Additional Reading

Global Reading

1. Read the title of the additional reading text. What do you know about America's court systems? Do you think that all of America has the same court systems? _____
all have the same system _____
2. Read the two columns - State Courts and Federal Courts.
What does the number 50 refer to? state court systems
What does 95% refer to? percentage of court cases in state courts
What does 5% refer to? percentage of court cases in federal courts
What does $75,000 refer to? the minimum amount of damages the federal court deals with
3. How many points are there about State Courts? 4
How many points are there about Federal Courts? 3
4. Read the paragraph after the heading "Types of Courts." Find the difference between Trial Courts and Appellate Courts.
Trial courts hear original cases while appellate courts hear only appeals.
5. How many points are there about Trial Courts? 5
How many points are there about Appellate Courts? 5

Close Reading

1. The expression handle cases is repeated both under the topic of State Courts and Federal Courts. What is the difference between the number of cases handled in State Courts and Federal Courts?

More cases are handled in state courts.

2. The word but on line 16 (State Courts) signals a contrast. How is Iowa different from other American states?

Iowa has only three courts

3. The marker from... to on line 25 signals the extent of something. What is the extent of the cases that Trial Courts handle? murder to traffic violations to civil cases

4. The word or on line 34 signals alternatives. What are the alternatives in Trial Courts?

judge or jury

5. In the column headed "Appellate Courts," the writer uses parentheses () on lines 35-37 to signal an explanation. What explanation does the writer give of an appellate court?

It is a court of appeals. The courts usually have 3-5 judges, but there are some with 9 justices

What explanation does the writer give of the number of judges? _____

America's Court Systems

Many people are surprised to learn that there isn't a single "court system" in the United States. Every state has its own court system to handle cases that involve disputes or crimes that occur within the state. The federal government also has a court system to handle cases that involve disputes or issues governed by federal laws or the U.S. Constitution.

State Courts

Every state has its own judicial branch, so there are 50 state court systems (plus the District of Columbia and Puerto Rico).

- Handle 95% of court cases in the United States.
- Handle cases involving disputes that arise under state laws.
- Every state court system is unique in some way. States differ widely in how they organize their courts.
- Some states have as many as 50 different types of courts, but Iowa only has 3 courts: Supreme Court, Court of Appeals, and District Court.

Federal Courts

There is a federal court system that handles claims under federal jurisdiction.

- Handle about 5% of court cases in the United States.
- Handle cases involving a violation of the U.S. Constitution, federal laws, or disputes over contracts or personal injuries involving citizens from different states and damages worth more than $75,000.
- Includes U.S. district courts, Court of International Trade, Claims Court, Circuit Courts of Appeal, Court of Appeals for the Federal Circuit, and the U.S. Supreme Court.

Types of Courts

Federal and state systems each have two different types of courts: trial courts and appellate courts. The general difference is this: trial courts hear original cases, while appellate courts hear only appeals.

Trial Courts

- In Iowa, the trial court is called the District Court. Judges and magistrates on this level handle a wide variety of cases, from murder to traffic violations to civil cases.
- Almost all cases start in a trial court. This is where the case is filed and evidence is gathered.
- As the name suggests, trial courts are where the trial is held before a judge or jury.
- In trial courts, both sides offer witnesses and evidence to support their side and the judge or jury makes decisions based on that evidence.
- About 90% of civil and criminal cases never go to a trial. The parties involved in a civil or domestic case usually settle the dispute before trial, and many criminal defendants enter a guilty plea before trial.

Appellate Courts

Most states (including Iowa) and the federal courts have two levels of appellate courts:

- An intermediate court of appeals, which handles all or most of the appeals coming from the trial courts in the state or federal court system. (In Iowa, this is called the Court of Appeals.)
- A Supreme Court, which is the final court of appeal. In Iowa, all appeals go first to the Supreme Court, which chooses to hear the appeal or transfers it to the Court of Appeals.
- Appellate courts are where a party involved in a civil case (or a defendant in a criminal case) goes if they do not agree with the decision of the judge or jury in the trial court.
- An appellate court (or court of appeals) usually includes a panel of 3 or 5 judges - or more. (The U.S. Supreme Court and a few state Supreme Courts have 9 justices.)
- In a court of appeals, there is no presentation of witnesses or physical evidence, which is done only in the trial court. The final judgment on an appeal is determined by a majority of the panel of appellate courts.

www.judicial.state.ia.us/students/overview

Comprehension Questions

1. What are some differences between State Courts and Federal Courts?

State courts try more cases than Federal courts. State courts handle disputes that arise under state laws while federal courts handle cases that involve a violation of federal law.

2. Give an example of how State Courts can differ widely.

Some states have as many as 50 different types of courts

3. What are the minimum damages (the compensation one party can receive from another party) that allow a case to be handled in the Federal Courts?

75,000

4. What is the difference between Trial Courts and Appellate Courts?

Trial courts hear original cases while appellate courts hear only appeals.

5. About how many civil and criminal cases actually go to trial?

10%

6. How many judges sit on the U.S. Supreme Court?

9 justices

How Awful!

a. Do you remember the dialogue, from the computer lesson? Write a similar dialogue between the man and his wife.

Wife: _____

Man: _____

Wife: _____

Man: _____

Wife: _____

Man: _____

b. Match the appropriate sentences in column B to the sentences in column A.

A	B
1. It could have been more difficult to find the car keys.	a. I could have written murder mysteries.
2. It could have been easier to do well.	b. He could have taken a taxi.
3. I could have been more famous than I am now as a detective.	c. It could have been dark.
4. The verdict could have been worse.	d. We could have been given more time for the test.
5. The lecture could have been more interesting.	e. I could have been charged with murder.
6. He could have been here quicker.	f. He could have shown us some pictures.

1. c 2. d 3. a 4. e 5. f 6. b

c. Rising crime in your city is preventable; write to the Police Chief with four or five ideas of how to prevent crime. Use any stories or anecdotes you know that can support your ideas.

More Future: Future Perfect

- a. Read this target list made up by a local mayor in her efforts to fight crime in her city. Then write a suitable speech that she can give to the police officers at their meeting tomorrow. Be prepared to give the speech in front of the class. Begin by saying: By this time next year, we will have reduced...

CRIMES PERIOD	MURDER	KIDNAPPING	CAR THEFT	HOUSE BURGLARY	VANDALISM
now	2/day	1/month	20/day	9/day	6/day
one year from now	2/week	1/year	5/day	9/week	6/week

Here are some useful words and expressions that you can use in your speech:

to cut

If I may have your attention...

to decrease

substantially considerably

I'm sure I have all your support in saying...

Thank you for coming here today...

to reduce

that we must fight crime in our city...

significantly

You can see from this table that...

impressively

Please look at this table...

Now, do you have any questions you would like to ask me?

b. What will I have achieved 20 years from now? Read my "predictions" and mark the sentences that could also be true for you.

- ☐ 1. I'll have stopped working.
- ☒ 2. I'll have retired.
- ☐ 3. I'll have played with my grandchildren.
- ☒ 4. I'll have traveled to many places.
- ☒ 5. I will not have learned any more foreign languages.
- ☐ 6. I'll have met many new people.
- ☐ 7. I'll have been to many weddings.
- ☐ 8. I'll have read all the Harry Potter books.
- ☒ 9. I'll have moved a few times.
- ☒ 10. I'll have given students a lot of homework.

c. Write three more future achievements which you think you will have probably achieved.

- 1. _____
- 2. _____
- 3. _____

Unit 3

Dangerous Sports

Interview with a Climber

a. Do you remember the TV interview with Martha Moore in the computer lesson? Complete each of the following sentences about the interview.

1. Martha is being interviewed about rock climbing
2. The interviewer asks Martha to explain why she risks her life for this sport
3. When Martha is rock climbing she doesn't let herself think about falling
4. Martha views each new climb as a challenge
5. What Martha loves about rock climbing is pushing the limits of what she can do
6. Martha is going to give the interviewer a climbing lesson

b. What can we learn about Martha Moore from the video? Mark true or false.

	True	False
1. She is a daring person who likes to take risks.	X
2. She has never risked her life.		X
3. She started in a local climbing gym.		X
4. She is never afraid when she climbs.		X
5. She has only climbed in the U.S.		X
6. She tried to rock climb outside for the first time last week.		X

c. Match the sentence or expression in column B to the sentence or expression in column A that has a similar meaning.

A	B
1. risked your life	a. requires a lot of courage
2. I was hooked!	b. I won't be any more prepared later.
3. takes a lot of nerve	c. go further than you ever have
4. have second thoughts	d. get past difficulties.
5. overcome challenges	e. put your life in danger
6. push the limits	f. think you might change your mind
7. Ready as I'll ever be!	g. I wanted to keep doing it.

1. e
2. g
3. a
4. f
5. d
6. c
7. b

d. Martha was invited to another interview at her old high school. Read the answers she gave and write the reporter's questions.

Reporter: (1) Are you well-known for your rock climbing ?

Martha Moore: Well, yes, I am well-known for my rock climbing.

Reporter: (2) Did you take risks as a high-school student ?

Martha Moore: Yes, I did take risks when I was here. I was not a quiet, well-behaved pupil. Once I did an experiment in the chemistry laboratory, but I'd better not tell you about that.

Reporter: (3) What extreme sports have you tried ?

Martha Moore: I have tried hang gliding; you know, when you use a glider to fly without an engine. I've done some mountain climbing in the Himalayas and I've jumped off some tall buildings with a parachute; I was arrested for that! I've even dived with great white sharks.

Reporter: (4) Can you define what you mean by a thrill ?

Martha Moore: That's a difficult question to answer. How can you define what a thrill is? Perhaps you could say it is a rush of blood to the head, or a great sense of enjoyment.

Reporter: (5) Do you think you are a role model for other people ?

Martha Moore: If I am a role model, I'd like to be thought of as a person who is daring and not afraid of taking risks, but at the same time I always take precautions. I'm really very cautious about everything I do.

e. Practice the interview with a partner in class.

Just in Time

a. Do you remember the story from the computer lesson? Mark if the following statements are true or false.

	True	False
1. Only Nick has a pilot's license.		X
2. The doctors have experience parachuting.	X
3. The doctors specialize in parachuting to places that can't be reached any other way.	X
4. The boys knew the doctors were on the way to help.		X
5. All three boys were reported to be badly hurt.		X
6. Hank saw the teenagers first.	X	X
7. Nick circled while the other doctors jumped.
8. Only Eddie was taken to hospital.		X
9. Now the boys warn other teenagers not to go on foolish adventures.	X

b. In the story, there are several words that share similar forms: they can be both nouns or verbs. Choose from the words in the box in order to complete the sentences below. You may have to change the form of the nouns or verbs. There are more choices than you need.

aid • base • call • circle • climb • contact • dare • edge • end • fall • find • jump land • license • map • need • panic • parachute • point • reach • rock • search size • study • take off • trip • turn

- Don't panic! Help is coming.
- The first parachute jump is always the most frightening.
- The search for the missing climbers is still going on.
- One of the doctors walked to the edge of the landing site.
- The E.M.P. doctors must be able study the medical needs of injured people very quickly.
- The injured people drew a huge circle in the sand to show the doctors

- where to land when they jumped.
7. I dare you to tell Nick that we are leaving him in the plane because he is a very bad parachutist!
8. He tripped over the stone and hurt his toe.
9. There were no trees so the injured walker took shelter under a big rock and waited for medical aid to arrive.
10. From my point of view, a helicopter is more useful than a plane.

Additional Reading

Global Reading

1. Read the title of the additional reading text. What do you think the article is about?

Probably about an exciting birthday

2. Read the first two sentences. Who is the speaker? an elderly person

What is the writer's purpose in beginning the text with a quotation?

to get the reader's attention

3. Read the first paragraph. What is the writer's opinion of the unusual birthday event?

He is astonished.

4. Read the last paragraph. How does it support the answer to question 3 above?

He repeats that he is amazed

How does the writer try to end the story on an interesting point?

5. Read the first sentence of the second paragraph. Why does Mr. Smith pause?

He doesn't know whether or not to discuss the event.

Do you think he will discuss his adventure with the writer?

6. Read the first sentence of the third paragraph. What happened after Mr. Smith had made a statement? He began to talk about his family.

What information do you think this paragraph will add to that already given in paragraphs one and two? Probably information about family members.

Close Reading

1. The writer uses the Past Progressive in line 1 to begin a description of the background activity. What is the background to the story? His granddaughter suggested he try sky diving

2. The semi-colon in line 4 is used to add information. Which pieces of information does it add?
A description of the warm weather.

3. The writer refers to the age of the old man. Which word is not used in the plural though you might expect it to be? 90-year-old instead of 90-years-old
(Note: We can also say "a four-door car", "a three-bedroom house", etc.)

4. At the end of paragraph 1, the writer uses the Past Perfect tense. Why?
He will describe something in the further past.

5. The word perhaps in line 9 is used to indicate to the reader that the writer is only guessing. What is the writer guessing about? Why he didn't want to talk about his experience.

6. The word Finally in line 10 indicates the end of something. What does the writer say has ended? his indecision

7. The word after in line 15 is used to indicate the sequence of events. What is the sequence of events up till now? His granddaughter suggested he try sky diving. He tried it and jumped with a pro
He tells the writer about his feeling

8. The word as can be used to compare two things or to describe a person's job or status. How is it used in line 17? It describes a person's status

9. The expression on another occasion in line 22 is used to introduce a new example. What does the writer give another example of? The story of his great-uncle's risk-taking

10. To whom does he in line 23 refer? his great-uncle

11. The expression was supposed to be in line 26 indicates some surprise. Why is the writer surprised? he was too old to be taking risks.

12. What was the last question the writer asked Mr. Smith?
What will you do on your next birthday?

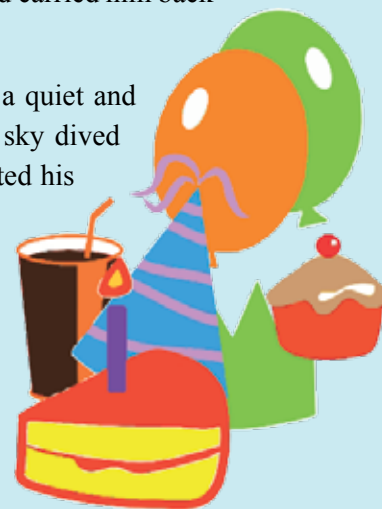

A BIRTHDAY THRILL

“Well, actually, it was my eldest granddaughter, Lucy’s idea. She was visiting one day at my old age home and she was talking about her latest extreme sport, sky diving. Then we got around to talking about what to do for my 90th birthday and the two ideas just got mixed up,” Mr. Smith explained to me as we drank tea in the gardens of his old age home in southern England. The summer weather was warm; the sun was out and Mr. Smith’s fellow pensioners were enjoying the gardens, some walking, others being pushed in their wheelchairs. It was hard to imagine that this frail 90-year-old man had fallen through the sky above only a few days ago. Of course he had jumped with a professional skydiver and they had shared one parachute, but still it was quite an achievement. I had to ask Mr. Smith what it had felt like.

He paused as if he was having some second thoughts about discussing his great adventure with me; perhaps some of his fellow pensioners had simply not believed he had jumped from a plane. Finally he answered, “It’s hard to compare sky diving to anything else, but I can say that now I understand what people mean when they say they jump for the thrill. As I fell, I felt that the ground was rushing to meet me and not that it was me who was falling towards it. The best comparison I can make is to say that I enjoyed it as much as I enjoyed the birth of my first child.”

After this statement, he offered me some cake and we began to talk about his family. I wanted to know if there was a history of risk-taking in his family. “Now that you mention it, there was my great-uncle Ted. As a child, he climbed up the flagpole at school, and as an adult, he was an explorer in Australia. The funny thing was he had no sense of direction and was always getting lost. One time, he fell asleep in the outback and only woke up when it was dark. He was afraid of the Aborigines and when he saw some torches, he assumed it was some of the local people coming to kill him for being on sacred land. He jumped up and ran away. Actually, the torches belonged to his team and they were out searching for him. The search continued for two days when suddenly he appeared in camp by himself. On another occasion, he fell asleep in the Australian Outback and an Aborigine found him. But he did not hurt Uncle Ted at all. Instead, the Aborigine took pity on this small European man so far from home, picked him up and carried him back to his camp.”

I was still amazed that this old man who was supposed to be enjoying a quiet and risk-free retirement had agreed to be taken up in a plane and had then sky dived from a great height. I asked one more question: now that he had celebrated his 90th birthday by sky diving, how would he celebrate the next one? “Oh, I don’t know,” replied Mr. Smith. “We will have to wait and see. I might start scuba diving, but the gear is expensive and I can’t get any company to insure me.”

Comprehension Questions

1. Who is telling the story the writer relates?

The writer and the grandfather

2. What special activity did this person do on his last birthday?

He went sky diving.

3. How do we know that the speaker might not really have wanted to tell the story?

He paused before he discussed the adventure

4. What did he compare his experience to?

He compared it to the birth of his first child

5. Who else in the family likes to take risks?

all the family

Going Beyond

Choose one of the following topics to write about:

1. Write about an elderly person who lives a very exciting life.
2. Write an anecdote about something that happened to you or to a close member of your family that involved taking a risk.

What Happened?

- a. "What Happened?" begins with a young man thanking his girlfriend for picking him up after his sports injury. Match the pictures of the people with the most appropriate quotation of saying thanks. Write a similar sentence of thanks for the fourth picture.

- 2 a. "Thanks for the water, I have another 10 k.m. to run."
 3 b. "To all our fans, I want to say thanks for your great support."
 1 c. "Thanks for remembering my birthday!"
 d. _____

- b. Cindy picked her boyfriend up. The meaning of pick depends whether it stands alone or is followed by a preposition. Match the meaning in column B with the correct sentence in column A.

A	B
1. Pick the sport shoes you want.	a. not show much interest
2. She only picked at her food before the big race.	b. blame someone for everything
3. They picked on me at the gym.	c. collect someone who is waiting
4. The runners picked up speed as they ran down the hill.	d. choose
5. Please pick me up from the sports stadium.	e. increase

1. d 2. a 3. b 4. e 5. c

- c. Read this e-mail from a mother to her injured son. Underline the expressions of sympathy. Now write a similar e-mail to a friend who has been injured while sky diving.

Dear Son,

How do you feel? I was so sorry to hear what happened to you. What a shame it happened in the last game of the season. I know I told you not to take too many risks, but from what I saw on the TV, it seems it was really an accident. What an awful thing to happen. I guess it could happen to any American football player.

What did the doctors tell you? How long won't you be allowed to play? I hope it will not take long as I know how much you love the game. Now, promise me something: while you are recovering, don't do anything you shouldn't do. That includes racing fast cars and chasing pretty ladies!

Now, you'll have more time to catch up on your education. Leaving school to play professional football was your decision, but now you can make up for lost time.

I also expect that you'll find more time for your family!

Love,

Mom

- d. Read these quotes from some athletes talking about drugs in sports. Then write a dialogue between an athlete and her coach in which the coach is trying to convince the athlete to take steroids.

"My coach told me that I couldn't expect to be competitive if I didn't take the drugs. She never mentioned the side effects."

"Personally, I am drug free and want to stay that way. What we need in sports is honesty and that means no athletes take drugs to give them a competitive edge."

"Let's face it, medical tests are always one or two steps behind the latest drug; that means that athletes who take these drugs are not caught."

"It's so difficult to know what to eat or what to drink, I have to read the ingredients of the packaged food so carefully. My friend had a cold and took some prescription medicine, but she was banned from competitions because the doctors found traces of an illegal substance in her blood."

More Infinitives: Other Uses

- a. The computer lesson described someone who had overeaten. Overeating is not very healthy, especially for sportspeople. Read the following sentences and underline the infinitive form.

"We don't expect Jones to be selected for the Olympic team next year because he's overweight."

"I don't want my parents to be worried when I go sky diving."

Complete the following paragraph using the verbs in parenthesis. You will have to change the form of the words to the infinitive.

A Checklist for Participants at the Olympics

1. All sportspeople who want (1) to be considered (consider) as Olympic athletes must have permission from their National Associations.
2. Any athletes not willing (2) to be tested (test) for illegal drugs will be banned from the Olympics.
3. We understand that many athletes hate (3) to be subjected to (subject to) random tests, but there is no choice. We expect over 5,000 athletes (4) to be tested (test) during the Olympics. We understand that many athletes are surprised (5) to be accused of, (accuse of) taking drugs and others are delighted (6) to be declared (declare) drug free. We were all shocked (7) to be told (tell) by the laboratory people that there are six new drugs at this Olympics. We were not surprised (8) to be informed (inform) that the older drugs are still used, too. That's why so many tests need (9) to be carried out (carry out). We are determined (10) to be described (describe) as the most drug-free Olympics.
4. In addition, we hope (11) to be described (record) in history as the friendliest Olympics.
5. All athletes are expected (12) to be properly dressed (dress) properly at the opening ceremony.

b. You work at a sports club. Write a letter of complaint to your boss, who hates to be criticized. Use some of the words in the box in a similar way to activity a.

angry • (not) delighted • determined • expect • hate • hope • (not) prepared
(not) willing • shocked • surprised • want

Dear Boss,

Yours truly,

Unit 4

Complaints

Call-In

a. Do you recall the radio program you listened to called "Interview Line"? Complete the following sentences about the program.

1. Mr. Swathmore's friends and colleagues call him Dan the Man.
2. Mr. Swathmore spent most of his journalist career working for "The National Reporter".
3. After he retires, he is probably going to make a documentary.
4. An issue which Mr. Swathmore knows a lot about is tabloid newspapers.
5. The first caller thinks that Mr. Swathmore's reports are based on rumors.
6. When Mr. Swathmore hears about a new story, he talks to people who are reported to have been involved.
7. The second caller agrees with the first caller and makes three new points:
~~Journalists always refuse to reveal their sources, journalists take advantage of people's personal life to make catchy headlines, tabloid bosses encourage journalists to break the law by exaggerating to suit their purposes.~~
8. To support his claims, Mr. Swathmore always relies on hard evidence.
9. Mr. Swathmore's opinion of "the truth of a story" is that it has many versions.
10. The issue for the next program will be freedom of the press.

b. Match the definitions in column B to the appropriate words and phrases in column A.

A	B
1. to be on air	a. to support and agree with somebody
2. to back someone up	b. to hear about something
3. freedom of the press	c. to find or reach a person
4. sources	d. the right of newspapers to print their opinions
5. tabloid newspapers	e. only a little of the whole story
6. to get hold of someone	f. people who give information to journalists
7. to get wind of a story	g. to be broadcast on radio or TV
8. the tip of the iceberg	h. newspapers that are very popular, cheap, and often scandalous

1. g 2. a 3. d 4. f 5. h 6. c 7. b 8. e

c. Match the nouns in column B to the most appropriate verbs in column A.

A	B
1. break	a. people
2. exaggerate	b. the law
3. follow up on	c. a claim
4. get hold of	d. people's tragedies
5. back up	e. sources
6. take advantage of	f. the truth
7. reveal	g. a story
8. base on	h. rumors

1. b 2. f 3. g 4. a 5. c 6. d 7. e 8. h

d. Complete the following newspaper interview with Dan the Man about his retirement.

- Interviewer: Now Dan, I hope you don't mind if we begin with your early career here at the newspaper. Remind me, how long ago did you start here?
- Dan: Well, I'm a little embarrassed to answer, but I started (1) 30 years ago.
- Interviewer: Can you tell us a little about the newspaper then, who you worked with?
- Dan: Yes, I'd be happy to remind the older readers of one particular investigative reporter who taught me all I know - Hank "Hot Lead" Smith.
- Interviewer: What did you learn from Hank?
- Dan: Well, first of all, he taught me that when you get (2) wind of a story, you have to get (3) hold of the people who are close to the story. They can tell you what they know. Hank also taught me that I have to (4) back up any claims I make in my articles.
- Interviewer: Now Dan, tell us about the most scandalous reports you have ever written.
- Dan: Well, there were a few, as anyone who is (5) familiar with tabloid papers knows. But in all these reports, even though I came under a lot of pressure from the courts, I never (6) revealed my sources.
- Interviewer: One last question Dan. What do you say to those people who complain that tabloid papers (7) exaggerated the truth?
- Dan: I can only say that the readers must decide what they believe and as long as there are good investigative journalists around, the papers will report the facts.

e. In the phrase, "... will soon be retiring", the word soon gives the reader extra information. Rewrite the following sentences using the word in the brackets to add additional information.

- The guest on the radio show is commonly known as "Dan the Man". (more)
The guest on the radio show is more commonly known as "Dan the Man"
- Dan is familiar with the world of tabloid newspapers. (very)
Dan is very familiar with the world of tabloid newspapers
- Is it known what happened? (actually)
Is it known what actually happened? Or is it actually known what happened?
- Journalists refuse to reveal any information. (always) Journalists always refuse to reveal any information
- The host of the show tells the listeners that this program is the tip of the iceberg. (just)
The host of the show tells listeners that this program is just the tip of the iceberg

- f. The adjectives in the first column all have common adjective endings: -y, -ous, -al. Use a good dictionary to find the missing words to complete the table below.

Adjectives	Nouns	Verbs
catchy	catch	catchy
personal	personality	personalize
scandalous	scandal	scandalize
special	specialty	specialize

Now complete the following dialogues using the correct forms of the most appropriate words from the table above.

- "I'm a lawyer by training and I (1) specialize in cases involving people who reveal state secrets."
"Really, so were you involved in the (2) scandal about the prime minister's secretary who sold secrets to foreign governments? I promise we won't publish your name."
- "The soft drinks company is complaining; they want us to come up with a (3) catchy slogan." "How about 'Spirit is Life!'?"
- "Her strong, decisive (4) personality was the main reason for her success at running a tabloid newspaper."
- "The restaurant has a few good dishes and is very popular with the Japanese reporters who work for the Tokyo tabloid, because their (5) specialty is Japanese sushi."

- g. The same news event is not always reported in the same way in the press. Read the following newspaper reports to find out in which section of the newspaper they might appear. Then answer the questions that follow.

1.

Billy Bloggart leaves the Typhoons

Those of us who were at the Typhoons' last game were all very upset to say goodbye to Billy Bloggart. He has played for this basketball team for more than ten years. Some of his best basketball was played as a member of this team, especially in the very successful 1996-1998 seasons when the Typhoons won back-to-back West Coast and U.S. National Titles. Billy averaged 45 points and 25 assists per game. Who will forget his superb last-minute winning dunk in the last game of the series last year?

Billy will be joining an East Coast team and playing basketball in Boston next season. So his many loyal fans here in Los Angeles will have to be satisfied with watching his games early in the morning. We wish Billy success with his new team and thank him for the many hours of exciting basketball that he has played with the Typhoons.

2.

Typhoons' Shares Hit by Transfer Deal

The price of the Typhoons' shares fell yesterday by 24% as nervous investors reacted badly to the announcement that Billy Boggart was leaving the basketball team at the end of this basketball season. The CEO of the company, which recently floated bonds on the market called "Billy's Bonds", appealed to investors to judge the company on its performance and profit margin and not on the departure of this legendary player.

However, sources in the market comment that Billy Bloggart represents a huge asset for the company because of his high profile on National TV and his promotion work for the Typhoons' PLC Company. The great majority of the Typhoons' merchandise features a picture of Billy. At the same time, the shares of the Boston Spurs PLC Company rose considerably following the news that Billy Bloggart will be joining their team next season.

3.

"Why I decided to leave." An exclusive interview with Billy

We spoke to Billy and his wife at their luxurious villa on the riverside. His wife Jeanette answered our first question: "It was a decision we both made together after considering the options carefully." Billy added, "Yes, we have had many second thoughts about it." Jeanette continued, "I'm from the East Coast myself. My parents and sisters still live there, and Billy agrees that our children should get to know their grandparents better."

Billy remained quiet and let his wife answer the questions. "I've always supported Billy's decisions in the past and we think that the climate and the education system in Boston will be beneficial to our children. Did you know that the university entry rates are much higher in Boston than in Los Angeles?"

Finally Jeanette told us, "Oh yes, we'll miss all our friends and the fans here in Los Angeles. Billy is especially fond of the Homeless People's Institute, which he visits every week. But we've decided to go and that's that."

1. Which event is central to all three articles? Billy Bloggart is leaving the Typhoons basketball team.
2. Which readers does each article target? The first article targets sports fans
3. What does each article focus on? The first article focuses on Billy's performances on the basketball court.
4. Which article did you prefer reading? Why? The third article focuses on Billy and his wife and the reasons for their move to the East Coast.

Complaint

a. Do you remember the letter that Felicity wrote to the president of Grumble’s Department Store? The events she describes are given below but they are not in the order she described them. Put them in the correct order.

- 1

a. On September 14th, Felicity bought a washing machine at Grumble’s delivered and installed. However, she couldn’t turn it on.
- 3

b. Another technician came to Felicity’s home to try to figure out what was wrong and he told her that she must have the machine repaired or exchanged for a new one. Felicity prefers to replace it.
- 2

c. She found a phone number to call in case of problems and had a long conversation with a technician but it didn’t help.
- 6

d. If the washing machine is not replaced, Felicity will ask her lawyer to get in touch with the store and this is her final warning.
- 4

e. After a second phone call to the store, Felicity wrote a letter to the appliance department manager explaining the problem. She has not received a reply to this letter yet.
- 5

f. Now it is October 21st and Felicity has just finished writing a letter to the president of Grumble’s Department Store. The washing machine has been at her house for six weeks and still doesn’t work. Felicity wants it replaced immediately.

b. Match the sentences in column B to a sentence or phrase with a similar meaning from Felicity’s letter, in column A.

A	B
1. "I'd like to bring to your attention the events of the past few weeks concerning a washing machine which I purchased on September 14th from your appliance department."	a. A few days after I paid for it, your men brought the washing machine to my home and connected it to the water pipes and to the electricity.
2. "The machine was delivered and installed several days later."	b. I read the instruction book again.
3. "(I) followed the instructions to the letter."	c. I found the phone number to call on a sticker on the back of the washing machine.
4. "I usually have a head for these things."	d. I was given very careful directions, one after the other.

5. "...I re-read the directions."	e. I want to tell you what has happened with a washing machine that I bought at your store last month.
6. "However, the machine remained idle."	f. I'm not going to write again: you must do something now!
7. "A label on the back of the machine listed a phone number to call in case of problems."	g. A second man visited my house in order to find the reason for the problem with the washing machine.
8. "...a technician... gave me step-by-step instructions."	h. I am good at doing such things.
9. "...another technician came to my home to try to figure out what was wrong."	i. But the washing machine still did not work.
10. "Please consider this a final warning."	j. I did exactly what the book told me to do.

1. e 2. a 3. j 4. h 5. b 6. i 7. c 8. d 9. g 10. f

c. When Felicity writes about her washing machine she often uses the passive voice which is formed by using the verb to be and the third form of the verb. For example: The washing machine was purchased on the 14th of September at Grumble's Department Store. We are interested in knowing when and where the washing machine was bought and not in knowing who bought it. Write a passive sentence or question from the words in brackets. The first two have been done for you.

1. The washing machine looks new. (when/it/install)

When was it installed?

2. What does Felicity want to do with the washing machine?

(it/need/replace)

It needs to be replaced.

3. What happened to the washing machine several days after Felicity bought it?

(it/delivered/and/install)

4. What is the problem with the washing machine?

(no laundry/do/at Felicity's house/since it arrived)

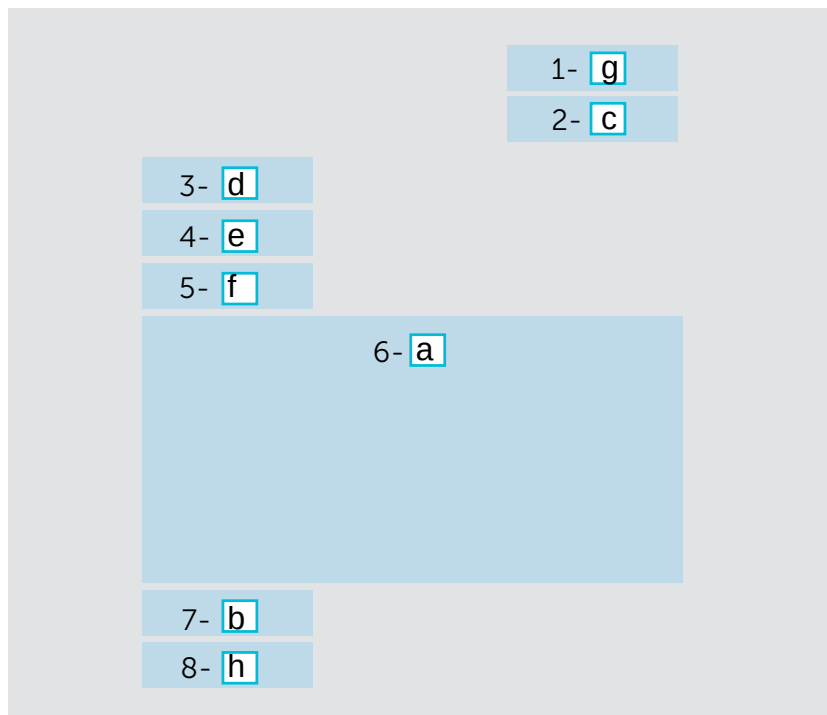

5. What has happened to Felicity's letter to the department manager?

(it/ignore)

6. How long will Felicity have had the washing machine in her house by the time the president of Grumble's Department Store receives her letter of complaint?
(by the time the President of Grumble's Department Store receives this letter/it/be in her house for nearly a month and a half.)
-
-

d. Match the different parts or components of a formal letter with the information they contain.

- a. the body of the letter, the message
b. the complimentary closing or the "goodbye"
c. the date of the letter
d. the name and job title of the recipient or the person who receives the letter

- e. the recipient's address (where the letter is being sent to)
f. the salutation or "greeting"
g. the sender's address
h. the sender's name or signature

- e. You purchased a brand new printer two weeks ago at the Useless Hi Tech Store, 233 Tennessee Street, Dallas. It has not worked well since it was installed. Only one page is printed and then the remaining pages are rejected. Only one language is printed. Only one color is available. Only one font is used. Only one size of letters is available.

Before you write a letter of complaint to the president of the store, decide which language, which color, which font, and which size of letters the printer uses; how many technicians have come to help you; how many calls you have made; who you have spoken to; who you are writing to, etc.

Remember to explain the problem and suggest a solution. Also remember to use the passive voice when you can. Follow the format of the formal letter in activity d.

Additional Reading

Global Reading

1. Look at the title of the additional reading text. What do you think the article is about?

The article is about a company that offers to write complaints for people

2. Read the first paragraph. Who is the article intended for? Passengers, shoppers, drivers, students

3. Read the first sentence of the second paragraph. What kind of complaints do you think it could refer to? Complaints that the people

4. Read the first sentence of each of the letters reprinted. What do they have in common?

All three sentences express an apology

Close Reading

1. The writer makes extensive use of rhetorical questions. Write an example of a rhetorical question.

how are you

2. In line 7, the writer uses the word but to show contrast. What is the writer contrasting?

The writer is contrasting effective and ineffective ways to express anger and complaints.

3. In line 8, the writer uses the word if to express a condition. What condition does the writer describe? The condition is that the reader can respond positively to one or more of the rhetoric

4. In lines 12-13, the writer refers to so much to so many. What does the much refer to and who does the many refer to? The word "much" refers to positive answers, compensation, apology

5. In the replies to the complaints, the writers use a variety of commonly used polite expressions. Write three of these expressions. _____

It refers to the ratio between complaints made and apologies received

Youcomplainwewrite.com

- Who are you? Yes, I know you have a name and you can speak English, but who are you? Are you a passenger? ... a shopper? ... a driver? ... a student? ... a passerby? ... a homeowner? In all of these roles you may, or you will probably need to complain at some time or other. Did the airline company lose your luggage? Did you buy a faulty washing machine? Was your car given a parking ticket when it was
- 5 in the garage? Did the school give you too much homework? Did a can of paint fall on your head as you were walking under a ladder? Did your neighbor's cat eat your favorite goldfish? You can shout, curse and thump the table, but what would be more effective? Let us help you to write a letter to the people you want to complain to and send a copy to their "boss." If you answer this question positively, then youcomplainwewrite.com can help you.
- 10 Have you ever wanted to complain but didn't have the time or the skills to write an effective letter? We have years of experience and the correspondence skills to draft and write letters quickly. "Your" letters, drafted by us, will attract attention and get answers to your complaints. We can give so much to so many frustrated people. We have a 95% success rate in getting people to apologize. Just read a selection of sentences that are taken from some of our recently received replies to our letters of complaint:
- 15 "Thank you for drawing our attention to the faulty chocolate bar dispensing machine located in your local bus station. A technician was sent to find out what the problem was and reported that the machine had been vandalized. I'm sure you will be delighted to hear that a new, better machine with a wider range of chocolate bars has been installed. Please find enclosed a credit note for a free bar at any one of our dispensing machines..."
- 20 "Your letter has reached me from our Complaints Department and I am truly sorry that you have suffered so much because of one of our washing machines. I am sending a team of technicians over to your house to replace all the electrical circuits in order to find out the reason why the machine jumps around when the music plays. In the meantime, please feel free to do your laundry at my expense at your local laundromat."
- 25 "We deeply regret our mistake in charging you $2,000 for a T-shirt instead of the stated price of $20. We are a little surprised that our staff did not notice the mistake immediately, but in any case we are happy to offer you credit to spend the remaining $1,980 at our department store. May I tell you about our new selection of jeans and the price cut we are offering on socks..."

Comprehension Questions

- Which way of complaining does the writer think is more effective, thumping tables and making oaths, or writing letters? The writer thinks that writing letters is more effective than thumping tables and making oaths
- To whom will the writer's company send a copy of letters they write? Why? To the "boss." A letter of complaint will be more effective if the boss knows you are complaining about or her workers
- Where are the selections taken from? They are taken from some recently received replies to letters of complaint written by youcomplainwewrite
- What do the selections have in common? They all offer some form of compensation.
- After reading the selections, which letter of complaint do you think had the best result? Why? The first letter which offers compensation at no cost, represents the best result.

Expensive Boutique

a. Read these quotations and decide if each one expresses a complaint or an apology.

	Complaint	Apology
1. "I can't stand these expensive little boutiques."	X
2. "We deeply regret our mistake..."		X
3. "I am truly sorry that..."		X
4. "I tried to call you many times, without success."	X
5. "The washing machine still doesn't work."	X
6. "Please accept our apologies."		X

b. The people in "Expensive Boutique" were out shopping. Write five complaints that you have about shopping for clothes, for food, for gifts, for shoes, and for a car.

1. Every woman in the basketball team is over six feet tall.
2. The hospital is located between two roads.
3. The decision not to replace Felicity's washing machine will not change.
4. I can't put up with machines that don't work.
5. I cannot do nothing and let her do it by herself.

c. Do you remember the expression from "Expensive Boutique", "I can't stand these expensive little boutiques"? Read the following sentences and replace stand or stand + preposition with the word or words in the brackets. Make any necessary changes.

1. Every woman in the basketball team stands over six feet. (to be)
Every woman in the basketball team is over six feet tall.
2. The hospital stands between two roads. (to be located)
The hospital is located between two roads.
3. The decision not to replace Felicity's washing machine stands. (is not to change)
The decision not to replace Felicity's washing machine will not change.
4. I can't stand machines that don't work. (to put up with)
I can't put up with machines that don't work.
5. I cannot stand aside and let her do it by herself. (to do nothing)
I cannot do nothing and let her do it by herself.

More Future: Future Progressive

a. Ask questions with Will you be + -ing.

1. Your friend is going shopping. You want him/her to buy some washing powder for you at Grumble Department Store. (you/pass/Grumble's Department Store when you're in town)
Will you be passing Grumble's Department Store when you are in town _____?
2. You want your friend to give Felicity a message this evening. (you/see/Felicity this evening)
Will you be seeing Felicity this evening _____?
3. You want to use your neighbor's washing machine tomorrow morning.
(you/use/your washing machine tomorrow morning)
Will you be using your washing machine tomorrow morning _____?
4. You want to listen to a radio call-in program when you visit your friend tomorrow.
(you/listen/call-in program tomorrow evening)
Will you be listening to the call-in program tomorrow evening _____?
5. You want a specific mechanic to fix your washing machine.
(you/work/tomorrow afternoon?)
Will you be working tomorrow afternoon _____?

b. Answer the following questions about how you see yourself in 15 years' time.

1. Where will you be living 15 years from now?

2. Which company will you be working for?

3. What kind of things will you be doing as part of your job?

Unit 5

Business Strategies

Ad

a. How does the ABC Finance Bank try to attract new customers? Read the benefits below and decide which of them the bank mentions in its ad.

	Mentioned	Not Mentioned
1. ability to overdraw on checking account	X
2. a free bank account management service		X
3. high-quality service	X
4. double checks everything	X
5. foreign currency exchange		X
6. Internet banking		X
7. keeping an eye on investments	X
8. keeping track of records	X
9. personal care	X
10. 24 hour telephone service		X

b. The ad opens by asking three questions to attract the listener’s attention. Write down three more questions the bank could have used in an ad to attract attention.

- 1. Would you like your bank to be open for longer hours? ?
- 2. Do you wish the tellers were friendlier? ?
- 3. Are you annoyed by long lines at the bank? ?

c. Match the noun in column B to the most appropriate verb in column A.

A	B
1. care about	a. your investments
2. check out	b. you
3. keep an eye on	c. on your account
4. keep track	d. a bank
5. manage	e. of financial records
6. overdraw	f. your bank account

1. b 2. d 3. a 4. e 5. f 6. c

d. Match the idioms from the ad with the most appropriate picture of their literal meaning.

Idioms Picture

a. checks bounce	 2
b. in the long run	 5
c. keep an eye on	 4
d. keep track of	 3
e. take it from me	 1

Now write a sentence illustrating the figurative meaning of each of the idioms from activity d.

1. take it from me

2. checks bounce

3. keep an eye on

4. keep track of

5. in the long run

e. Complete the text below using the appropriate words below.

avoid - avoidance • invest - investment • manage - management satisfy - satisfaction • serve - service

Banking Today

Doing your banking today is not the same as it used to be. Do you remember the long lines as you waited for a teller? Now you can (1) avoid the lines by sending an e-mail to an Internet teller for routine banking. There is also a new (2) service for account holders who are seeking advice on which (3) investments to make; for example, should they (4) invest in stocks and shares or in real estate? In summary, we can say that the priority for (5) management at all modern banks is to guarantee customer (6) satisfaction.

f. Complete the following dialogue with the correct form of the phrasal verbs below.

cares about to give attention to someone's needs and requirements

check out to learn more about something or someone in order to decide what to do invest in to put money into a place which you hope will give you a profit in the long run (future)

keep an eye on to pay careful attention to something or someone

keep track of

to pay attention to how something or someone changes over time

take it from me

to believe something somebody tells you

- Caller: Hello, am I speaking to someone at the ABC Finance Bank?
- Teller: Yes, that's right, how can I help you?
- Caller: Well, you see, I have some money and I'm interested in (1) investing in your bank.
- Teller: We here at ABC Finance Bank can help you. Our customers are very satisfied with our high-quality service. Right now, for example, I'm (2) keeping an eye on the accounts of 12 old ladies who can't come to the bank very often. They know that we are the bank that (3) cares about them.
- Caller: That's all very well, but I want a bank that can give me financial reports every day. I want a bank that can (4) keep track of my investments in America, in Japan, in Australia, and in Greenland for the next five years.
- Teller: Well, you don't have to (5) take it from me me. I suggest that you come to the bank and talk to Ms. Monroe in our International Investment Department.
- Caller: I'll do that, I'll certainly be in to (6) check out the ABC Finance Bank.

g. The satisfied customer's final words in the ad were: "As long as my money is at ABC Finance Bank, my savings are secure." Note that the present tense is used in the second clause. This is true of conditions (if) and time expressions (as soon as, when, as long as). Fill in the correct form of the verb in the sentences below.

1. She'll get high-quality service if she opens (to open) an account at ABC Finance.
2. Errors, which could cost customers a lot of money, are avoided at the ABC Finance Bank as long as the bank double-checks (to double-check) everything.
3. You'll learn more about the bank if you check (to check) us out.
4. The bank will keep track of my investments as long as I pay (to pay) a monthly fee.

h. You want to know more about the ABC Finance Bank. Write a formal letter with today's date to:

Mr. Ian Formation

Manager - Customer Inquiries ABC Finance Bank
22 Seaside Boulevard
Brighton
United Kingdom

Tell the bank manager that you have a lot of money to invest and ask him about the services the bank provides, what the fees are, and what happens if an account is over drawn. Also ask for a meeting early next week to discuss the issues.

Request

a. Do you remember the letter in the computer lesson? Read the following statements and decide whether they are true (✓) or false (✗).

1. Kara Moore and Mr. Morgenthal have never met. ✓/✗
2. By February, Ms. Moore will become the manager of marketing. ✓/✗
3. The magazine will target young people. ✓/✗
4. Ms. Moore has included a bill with her letter. ✓/✗
5. Ms. Moore suggests that Mr. Morgenthal advertise shoes. ✓/✗
6. Ms. Moore insists that Mr. Morgenthal reply quickly. ✓/✗

b. Mr. Morgenthal and Ms. Moore had a phone conversation the following day. Who do you think might have said the following things, Ms. Moore or Mr. Morgenthal?

	Ms. Moore	Mr. Morgenthal
1. "I'd like to talk to you about your ideas described in your letter of January 20th".	☐	☒
2. "May I ask you what you think of my ideas?"	☒	☐
3. "I think your idea to create a new high-quality youth magazine with an environmental theme is a very good one as we also care about the environment and only make our shoes from natural materials".	☐	☒
4. "First of all, congratulations on your promotion to head of the publications office".	☐	☒
5. "Thank you, I'm very grateful for your support and advice when we last met".	☒	☐
6. "I've read your outline of the first proposed issue and we might be interested in advertising in the magazine, but that would depend on the cost".	☐	☒

c. Match the sentences in column B to the sentences with a similar meaning in column A.

A	B
1. It has been some time since we were in contact.	a. The company appreciated my yearly report on publications.
2. I hope that all is well with you.	b. It will be quite easy to get more young people interested in the environment because the topic is often in the news.
3. My annual presentation to the organization seems to have been well received.	c. My plan is to focus on young people and try to get their attention on issues related to the environment.
4. ...and by next month I will be managing the whole publications office.	d. I hope to have a good name because of the high quality of the magazine and not just because it focuses on environmental issues.
5. One of my primary objectives for next year is to focus on reaching out to youth and getting them interested in environmental issues.	e. We haven't spoken for a while.
6. Now that the environment has become a hot news topic, that should not be too difficult.	f. Soon I will be in charge of all the magazines we produce.
7. I would like the magazine to be known for its quality rather than its environmental subject matter.	g. I'd like you to think about my suggestion and call me when you have made a decision.
8. Please take time to think the idea over, and then let me know what you decide.	h. I hope you are feeling well.

1. e 2. h 3. a 4. f 5. c 6. b 7. d 8. g

d. Match the words in column B to the appropriate words in column A in order to complete the collocations.

A	B
1. to appeal to	a. a project
2. to create	b. an office
3. to manage	c. a product
4. to reach out to	d. a magazine
5. to sell	e. youth
6. to support	f. university students

1. c 2. b 3. a 4. d 5. f 6. e

e. Do you remember how Ms. Moore tries to convince Mr. Morgenthal to agree to advertise in the new publication? Circle the correct answer.

1. Ms. Moore begins her letter with...
 - a. a business proposal.
 - b. a description of her plans.
 - ☒ c. a friendly note, her latest news and a thank you.
 - d. a satisfied customer's opinion.

2. In the second paragraph of the letter, Ms. Moore...
 - a. gives an outline of her targets for next month.
 - ☒ b. gives an outline of her targets for the coming year.
 - c. says "Thank you" again.
 - d. makes a business suggestion.

3. In the fourth paragraph of the letter, Ms. Moore...
 - ☒ a. makes an offer.
 - b. describes the quality of the magazine.
 - c. offers to give money to Mr. Morgenthal.
 - d. offers to buy some shoes.

4. Ms. Moore finishes her letter with...
 - a. a joke.
 - b. a thank you.
 - ☒ c. a request.
 - d. a final warning.

5. The salutation is...
 - a. very formal.
 - b. very informal.
 - ☒ c. friendly but formal.
 - d. formal but unfriendly.

f. Ms. Moore makes a proposal in her letter.

1. When we make a proposal we often use expressions such as, I thought that you might be interested, this could be a good way, this might solve your problems. What tense are these expressions in?

modals/Past Simple

2. In English, people usually do not want to use language that is boastful. Ms. Moore writes that her presentation seems to have been well received. What expression indicates that she is modest?

seems to have been

3. When making a proposal, it is always a good idea to give the buyer or investor a good reason and explanation to invest his or her money. What words does Ms. Moore use: to give a reason? Since you depend on selling your products to youth, we are, therefore, offering to give an explanation? _____

4. Another way to achieve a positive response to an offer is not to put pressure on the investor. How does Ms. Moore do that? Please take your time to think the idea over, and then let me know what you decide.

g. Plan and write a business proposal to:

Mr. R. E. Luctant,
Chief Executive of Polar Ice Cream
1 Frozen Avenue
Copenhagen

When you last met Mr. Luctant, he gave you some advice on how to sell ice cream. Now you want him to advertise in your new publication, "A Sweet Tooth". Use the letter from the computer lesson as a model. There should be three main paragraphs.

Marketing Strategy

a. Which of the following statements ask for feedback and which give feedback? Mark the correct column

	Ask for feedback	Give feedback
1. What do you think of my new marketing strategy?	X
2. Well, I tend to feel that we must also target middle-aged women in this campaign.		X
3. In my opinion, more market research is needed.		X
4. Could I ask you where you stand on using focus groups?	X
5. I would suggest that we target the over 50s age group.		X
6. We'd be interested to hear your views on the new advertising campaign.		X

b. Do you remember the conversation in the computer lesson between two people who work in marketing? They both know about the four marketing key words which all begin with the letter "P". These words are given in the box below. Match each one with an appropriate definition.

Place • Price • Product • Promotion

1. Products : machines, clothes, food, or services
2. Price : the cost of the product
3. Place : often called distribution or how the products get to the market
4. Promotion : gets people interested in the product or service.

c. Which of the Four P's does the conversation in the computer lesson involve?

Additional Reading

Global Reading

1. Look at the title of the additional reading text. Who do you think the article is written for?

The article is written for companies and business people who are interested in learning how to find new customers.

2. Read the first paragraph. What do you think the purpose of this paragraph is?

The writer explains why target marketing is the only effective way.

3. Read the first sentence of the second paragraph. What advice does the writer give?

The writer advises his or her readers to get as much information as they can about their existing or potential customers.

4. Read the first sentence of the third paragraph. How many categories does the writer focus on?

The writer focuses on four categories.

5. Read the first sentence of the fourth paragraph. What specific issue does the writer focus on?

The writer focuses on the issue of benefits.

Close Reading

1. The writer uses the word but in the first sentence to show contrast. What does the writer contrast?

2. The word when (line 3) is used to describe a necessary condition. What condition needs to be met for a marketing budget to be effective?

3. The abbreviation i.e. signals that the writer will give an example. What does the writer give an example of?

4. In line 9, the writer explains a connection between two elements using the expression The more... the better... What two things does the writer compare?

5. In lines 13-14, the writer uses the word if twice in order to describe two conditions. What are the two conditions?

What advice does the writer give?

6. Read the four categories. In which one would you classify:

a. the number of people in a certain area

b. what customers think about a product or a service

c. the salaries customers earn

d. how often a customer uses the same service or buys the same product

e. where customers get their information about products and services

7. In line 25, the writer uses the words critical to in order to describe an important link between two issues. What are the two issues?

Finding Your Customers

Everybody talks about target markets and taking aim, but not everybody does it. Target marketing is the only effective way to optimize marketing resources. Your marketing budget is going to be most effective when it reaches your selected target market. When we look at the big picture and sort through the marketing jargon, the benefit of target marketing is simple - efficiency. Solid target marketing is a method of reaching your customers more efficiently. Target marketing is a better use of your most valuable resources, i.e., time and money, to generate additional revenue. It is as straightforward as that. Now, let's talk more about how to get there.

Your goal is to acquire as much information as you can about your existing or prospective customers. The more you know about your customers, the better you will be able to make decisions that will enhance your ability to communicate and connect with them. Who do you consider will benefit the most from your products and services? Think of the people and their most common characteristics and attributes. One of the best ways to identify your target market is to look at your existing customer base. Who are your ideal clients? What do they have in common? If you do not have an existing customer base, or if you are targeting a completely new audience, speculate on who they might be, based on their needs and the benefits they will receive. Investigate competitors or similar businesses in other markets to gain insight.

While you collect information, use these four category areas to identify and define your target market:

1. Geographics: The location, size of the area, density, and climate zone of your customers.
 2. Demographics: The age, gender, income, family composition and size, occupation, and education of your customers.
 3. Psychographics: The general personality, behavior, life-style, rate of use, repetition of need, benefits sought, and loyalty characteristics of your customers.
 4. Behaviors: The needs your customers seek to fulfill, their level of knowledge, information sources, attitude, use, or response to a product.
- One of the marketing fundamentals is focusing on benefits. This perspective is critical to target marketing. Establishing an intimate understanding of the needs of your target market is critical. How will your customer profit or otherwise gain from using your products or services? Meeting this need is one of the most convincing points for sales to be made, cash to flow, and profits to result. You must seek to quantify the value of offering a solution to this need. You may be able to do this by asking these questions about your products and services:
- How much can it save your customer?
 - How much can it earn for your customer?
 - What intangible benefits might customers realize, and is it possible to quantify these benefits?

Comprehension Questions

1. According to the text, when is a marketing budget most effective? When it reaches the selected target market.
2. What is the most important goal in marketing? To get to know as much as you can about your customers.
3. What is the best way to identify a target market? It is to look at the existing customer base.
4. What does the writer suggest to companies that do not have an existing customer base?
The writer suggests that they to speculate on who they might be.

More Infinitives: Perfect

Mr. Johnson has asked for a report on a rival advertising agency. Complete the report using the most appropriate expressions below.

appears to have won

known to have recruited believed to have been approached by seems to have recovered from thought to have invested in

Client: J. E. Alous Advertising Agency

Target Company: B.E.Tter Advertising Agency

Information Sources: Company house, balance sheets, promotional material, confidential interviews with ex-employees

Dear Mr. Johnson,

Please find our full report attached.

A summary of our findings is as follows:

The B.E.Tter Advertising Agency (1) seems to have recovered from its poor performance last year and (2) appears to have won several top advertising tenders for contracts with soft-drink manufacturers.

They are (3) known to have recruited a well-respected marketing guru to work part-time for them as a consultant. In addition, they are (4) thought to have invested in new computer software which predicts market trends. Finally, they are (5) believed to have been approached by the government with a contract to run next year's government-sponsored nationwide anti-smoking advertising campaign.

Unit 6

Communication

Soap Opera

- a. Do you remember the conversation between Cathy and Carlos in the Listening section? Mark the sentences true (✓) or false (✗). Write the sentence or phrase from the script that gives you the answer.

1. Both Cathy and Carlos meet at a university. ✓/✗

Now that a group of Mexican students has come to her university

2. Cathy likes to talk to strangers. ✓/✗

As a rule, I don't talk to strangers.

3. Carlos is impressed that Cathy is interested in Mexico. ✓/✗

I really admire your interest in Mexico

4. Cathy is surprised at how good Carlos's English is. ✓/✗

Wow! Taking into account that you've just arrived, your English seems to be fluent.

5. Carlos thinks it's important to learn the language of a country you want to visit and stay in for a while. ✓/✗

Learning the language of a new country is a must if you want to fit in

6. Only a few people in the U.S. imagine that all Mexicans wear large hats. ✓/✗

It's a real generalization

7. Carlos explains why he is upset. ✓/✗

I just get offended when people stereotype me

8. Cathy doesn't apologize. ✓/✗

Sorry

9. Carlos doesn't want to go to Cathy's house for dinner. ✓/✗

OK. I'd enjoy some good American hospitality

b. Answer the following questions.

1. In which country does Cathy live?

Cathy lives in the U.S

2. What is her motivation for speaking to Carlos?

She wants to learn about Mexican culture because she will be traveling there

3. Who begins the conversation and in which language?

Cathy begins the conversation in English

4. Who gets offended during the conversation and why?

Carlos gets offended because Cathy thought all Mexicans wear sombreros

5. What do you think will happen in the next episode of "Ups and Downs"?

Accept all logical answers.

c. Write the expressions that Cathy uses to perform the functions listed below.

What expression does Cathy use to:

1. introduce herself?

Hi there!

2. tell Carlos her name?

I'm Cathy, by the way

3. compliment Carlos?

Taking into account that you've just arrived, your English seems to be fluent

4. ask for help with her Spanish?

Maybe you can help me with my Spanish

5. apologize?

Please don't take offense

6. invite?

why don't you come for dinner Friday?

d. Read a conversation Carlos had with his Mexican friend. Read his answers and write what his friend asked him.

Friend: Who is that woman you were talking to _____?

Carlos: Oh, she is an American who studies here and who is very interested in Mexico.

Friend: Which language did you speak to each other in _____?

Carlos: English, of course. You know I'm practically bilingual.

Friend: Does she like you _____?

Carlos: I'm not sure, but she would like me to help her improve her Spanish.

Friend: What did you talk about _____?

Carlos: Well, we talked about sombreros. She called them "great Mexican hats" and she thought we wear them all the time.

Friend: Really? How did you react _____?

Carlos: How do you expect I reacted? That is a big generalization. I mean when was the last time you wore one?

Friend: So you're not going to see her again, right _____?

Carlos: Actually, I am going to see her again. I've been invited to dinner.

e. Match the words in column B to the most appropriate words in column A to complete the expressions.

A	B
1. American d	a. account
2. as a e	b. offense
3. fall f	c. in
4. to take b	d. hospitality
5. to take into a	e. rule
6. to fit c	f. in love

- f. The following is the synopsis of next week's episode of "Ups and Downs". Read it carefully and then write the script for the next episode.

At Cathy's apartment.

She and Carlos are finishing dinner and Carlos thanks Cathy for her hospitality. He offers to help her with the washing up and they go to the kitchen and start cleaning up. They talk about Mexico, the weather, the people and the culture, but suddenly he breaks one of Cathy's glass bowls, the one her grandmother gave her. Cathy is very upset and Carlos tries to be sympathetic. However, Cathy asks him to leave. Carlos leaves and tells her he'd like to see her again. Cathy doesn't say "No" but she doesn't say "Yes" either.

Carlos: Thank you for your hospitality. Can I help you with the washing up?

Cathy: Sure.

A few minutes later in the kitchen.

Cathy: Carlos, what's the weather like in Mexico?

Carlos: Well, it's warmer than here with less rain

Cathy: And how would you describe Mexican people?

Carlos: Now Cathy, let's not generalize again, but as a rule Mexicans are friendly and hospitable.

Cathy: Right, Carlos, but I'm really interested in Mexican culture. What can you tell me about it?

Carlos: I'm glad you asked me that question, Cathy. Mexico has a great and historical culture. In Mexico City OOPS!

(CRASH)

Cathy: Oh no! Not the bowl my grandmother gave me! How could you drop it! It's irreplaceable!

Carlos: I'm very sorry, Cathy, how can I help compensate you for your loss?

Cathy: Carlos! I think you had just better leave now

Carlos: Of course. Can I see you again, Cathy?

Cathy: Maybe

Personal

a. Do you remember the letter from the computer lesson? Number the following events in the correct order.

- 10 a. A big basket of fruit and a note saying "Practice your Portuguese!" was delivered to Bill.
- 1 b. Bill arrived in Portugal six months ago.
- 8 c. Bill asked his friend to find out what had upset his hosts.
- 7 d. His hosts stopped speaking in surprise and shock.
- 4 e. Bill didn't eat anything at home before the meal.
- 3 f. He learned a few Portuguese words by heart just before he left for the dinner.
- 5 g. The hosts served roast beef.
- 6 h. He tried to explain that he was a vegetarian and didn't eat meat.
- 9 i. It turned out that there was a misunderstanding because of Bill's poor Portuguese.
- 2 j. Bill was invited for dinner to the home of a local family.

b. Match the words in column B to the appropriate prefixes in column A.

A	B
1. bi bilingual	a. appropriate
2. in incomplete	b. complete
3. un uninterested	c. correct
4. mis misunderstanding	d. hospitable
	e. interested
	f. lingual
	g. offensive
	h. understanding

c. Match the words from column B with the words from column A to form an expression.

A	B
1. to express h	a. across
2. to get by c	b. of something
3. to get a message a	c. in a language
4. to keep e	d. down an offer
5. to make f	e. in touch
6. to speak g	f. headway
7. to take advantage b	g. like a native
8. to turn d	h. yourself

d. Now use the expressions from activity c. to complete what three foreign language students in Sweden are telling each other. Change the form of the expressions if necessary.

Bill: How good is your Swedish?

Elaine: I know enough (1) to get by. I can go shopping and ask the policeman for the time and directions. What about you, Carlos, how well can you (2) express yourself in Swedish, with all the difficult pronunciation?

Carlos: Well, I can usually (3) get my my message across. And you, Bill, do you (4) speak Swedish like a native?

Bill: Not at all, but I think I (5) have made headway. When I arrived here I couldn't speak a word but now I know much more.

Elaine: Really, well, why don't we speak Swedish now?

Bill: Usually I like to (6) take advantage of every opportunity to practice Swedish, but I have to go now.

Carlos: Unfortunately, I must also (7) turn down the chance to practice Swedish. I have a date.

Elaine: OK guys, but we should meet to speak Swedish, so (8) Let's keep in touch. I'll send all of you SMS messages early next week, in Swedish!

e. After Elaine received Bill's letter she wrote a reply. Use these points to help you write Elaine's reply. Remember the letter should be informal and friendly.

- Thank Bill for keeping in touch.
- React to the story.
- Tell him about a language course you are taking.
- Give information about how long you have been studying, how much headway you have made, and how you are getting on.
- Tell an anecdote about a misunderstanding you had in the foreign language you are studying.
- End with a friendly message.

Please Speak Up

a. Do you remember the frustrating telephone conversation in the computer lesson? What do you know about the caller?

1. Is the caller a man or a woman? The caller is a woman
2. Who is the caller trying to get hold of? She's trying to get hold of Mr. Carlton.
3. How many times does the caller make the same request? She makes the same request three times
4. How does she make the request with slightly different language? Write down the different expressions.

I'd like to speak to Mr. Carlton; I said I want to speak to Mr. Carlton;

I'm already shouting. Is Mr. Carlton there?

5. Does the caller's language get more or less formal as the conversation goes on?

Her language gets less formal as the conversations goes on.

6. What do you think the caller will do? Will the caller call again? What would you do in a similar situation?

b. Match the expressions below to the appropriate situations.

Situation:

1. You are speaking to a Chief Executive Officer of an international company.
2. You are speaking to your best friend.
3. You are speaking to your young child.
4. You are speaking to a customer.
5. You are speaking to a salesperson.

Expressions asking people to repeat what they have just said:

- a. I've told you before. You'll have to speak more loudly if you want people to hear you.
- b. I'm afraid I can hardly make out what you are trying to tell me; please speak more slowly.
- c. I beg your pardon, sir. Could you repeat that?
- d. Speak up! I can't hear you!
- e. I'm sorry, what exactly did you ask me?

1. c 2. d 3. a 4. e 5. b

c. Complete the telephone conversation with a bad connection between a caller and an office receptionist.

Caller: I was wondering if Ms. Moore is in her office?

Receptionist: (ask the caller to repeat his request) _____
I beg your pardon. What was that again _____?

Caller: (repeat your question more informally) _____
I said I want to speak to Ms. Moore _____?

Receptionist: (ask the caller to speak up, politely) _____
I'm sorry, sir. I can't hear you very well. Can you please speak up _____?

Caller: (tell the receptionist that you can't speak any louder and repeat your request very informally) _____
I'm already shouting. Is Ms. Moore there _____?

Receptionist: (explain that the connection is awful and suggest that the caller tries again) _____
Sir, this connection is awful. Please call again. _____?

Additional Reading

Global Reading

1. Look at the title of the additional reading text. Who are the people that you think the writer is targeting? language students

What kind of advice do you think the writer will give these people?

The writer might advise them how to make headway in their studies.

2. Read the first sentence of the first paragraph. How does it support your first idea?

The writer has a message for all foreign language students and wants to tell them about a few general guidelines to help them.

3. Read the first sentence of the second paragraph. What word does the writer use instead of practicing? The writer uses the word “reinforcing” instead of “practicing”

4. How many ways does the writer suggest to practice using a new language?

The writer suggests 11 different ways to practice using a new language.

Close Reading

1. In line 1, the writer uses the word by to explain how to do something. What is the writer's suggestion? all foreign language students should follow the guidelines provided.

2. In line 3, the writer uses the word like to make a comparison. Which comparison does the writer make? compares learning a language to playing the piano and ice-skating.

3. What or who does the word they in line 5 refer to? The word “they” refers to vocabulary words and

4. In lines 8 and 9, the writer uses commas to make a list. What does this list refer to?

This list refers to typical classroom activities.

5. The writer uses the word fix in line 13. What is the meaning of the word in this context?

In this context, “fix” means to make sure new foreign words are remembered

6. The writer uses the word so in line 16 to give a consequence. What is the consequence?

The consequence here is the ability to practice vocabulary or to memorize dialogues.

7. The writer uses the expression so forth in line 25 in order to represent other things of the type that was already mentioned. What category of things has been mentioned?

The category of things is the one in which props can help the foreign-language student to remember new words

8. The writer uses the word but in line 26 to show contrast. What does the writer contrast?

The writer contrasts the ambition of writing a diary in a foreign-language with the potentially limited foreign-language ability of the student.

9. The writer uses the word so in line 30 to give a consequence. What is the consequence?

The consequence here is the chance to practice the student's foreign-language pronunciation.

The Ideal Language Student

No matter what method you choose to learn a language, you can maximize your results by following a few general guidelines. The most important thing is to take every opportunity to practice and reinforce what you are learning. Like piano playing and ice-skating, language learning requires constant practice. Almost no one can learn vocabulary words or grammar rules by looking at them. They must be practiced again and again and used in conversation to convince the brain that they are important and worth keeping.

Reinforcing the same material in a number of different ways is especially effective. In a language class, you will probably read a textbook, listen to your teacher, complete some writing exercises, and do some speaking. There are also other ways you might consider to reinforce the material that you are learning:

- Reading aloud to yourself, a partner, or a tape recorder.
- Recording your teacher in class (with permission) and using the tape for extra practice.
- Copying text passages and lists of vocabulary words to help fix them in your memory.
- Testing yourself with flash cards.
- Making use of spare moments by carrying a textbook or small notebook with you wherever you go, so that you can practice vocabulary or memorize dialogues.
- Posting notes, poems, or sayings with vocabulary words around your home. Especially if everyone in the household is learning the language, it can be fun to label things.
- Thinking up associations. It's easy to remember the Czech word for hello (ahoy) if you think of sailors greeting each other. Ask your teacher about associations other students have used, or make up your own.
- Using physical props. Get creative about using props to help you learn vocabulary. Using senses such as touch and taste will help fix the words in your memory. For example, you might touch something cold and say the word for that sensation in your new language. Consider using props to help you learn the names of colors, foods, articles of clothing, and so forth.
- Keeping a diary. Start a diary in the foreign language, but don't be too ambitious. Slowly your new language skills will allow you to write more complex ideas. This is also a good way to evaluate your progress and see how much headway you are making.
- Recording foreign language songs. It's usually not too difficult to find the lyrics and a translation, but the important thing is to sing along and so practice your pronunciation. We suggest you start this exercise while taking a shower.
- Using language software on a computer. These days more and more options exist to practice your new language skills with the assistance of a computer program. You can reinforce both reading and listening skills using these programs.

Comprehension Questions

1. What is the writer's advice to language students?

The writer advises language students to follow the general guidelines to practice what they are learning.

2. List the ways of reinforcing mentioned in the bullets that can be done effectively on your own.

This list is as follows: reading aloud to yourself, copying text passages and lists of vocabulary words.

3. List the ways of reinforcing mentioned in the bullets that depend on the cooperation of others to be effective.

This list is as follows: reading aloud to a partner, recording your teacher, and asking your teacher about word associations.

4. Do you agree with the writer that only a very few people can remember foreign language words by looking at them? How do you remember new vocabulary yourself?

yes, I am agree

5. Choose three ways you think are the most effective in terms of language acquisition and explain the reasons for your choices.

Phrasal Verbs: Review

a. Complete the following sentences using phrasal verbs from the box below. You may need to change their form.

hand in • pay back • set up • take off • turn on • try out

1. Why don't we try out the new approach to cross-cultural training?

2. Do I need to take off my hat when I visit the church?

3. We will need the services of a local company with local expertise before we decide to set up a factory abroad.

4. Where must I hand in my application for a visa to visit Albania?

5. We turn on the lights early during the winter months.

6. Will the international debtors pay back the money?

b. Which word does not belong? Circle the word which does not collocate with the phrasal verb in bold.

1. back up:	a friend	an enemy	a colleague	a brother
2. blow out:	a candle	a small fire	a hurricane	a match
3. break off:	a holiday	a piece of chocolate	a negotiation	an engagement
4. carry out:	a task	a military strike	a medical operation	a factory
5. clear up:	a mess	the dirty dishes	money	the yard
6. look up:	a word	a telephone number	a meal	an old friend

c. Choose a phrasal verb to complete the following sentences.

bring them up • let us down • find out • fill in • get rid of • call off

- After many years of international negotiations, all the countries agreed to work together in order to get rid of (eliminate) the deadly virus. Unfortunately, they haven't been able to find out (discover) a way to do it.
- Parents who adopt children from another country need more help to bring them up (raise and educate) them call off.
- We may have to let us down (cancel) the event. Our guests from Mexico didn't arrive.
- The Portuguese visitors fill in us out (disappoint) because they couldn't come for dinner.
- Did you bring them up (complete) the form for your visa?

d. Fill in the missing phrasal verb.

turn down • give up • picks up

1 When are you going to give up smoking?

2 In this country, who picks up the bill?

3 How do you say, "Please turn down the volume of your radio," in Danish?

Unit 7

Medical Issues

Acupuncture Might Help

- a. Do you remember the conversation between Freddy and Ron in the video clip in the computer lesson? Mark whether the statements are true or false.

Statement	True	False
1. Freddy and Ron work together.	X
2. Freddy hurts his back.		X
3. Freddy has not been to the doctor.		X
4. Ron has gone to an acupuncturist	X
5. Freddy would rather have surgery than acupuncture.		X
6. Ron hurts himself.	X

b. Complete the following sentences from the dialogue in the video.

1. You do seem to be in a lot of pain.
2. I don't know how I feel about acupuncture.
3. Should I make an appointment for both of us?

c. Who is each statement talking about? What do they say?

1. He hurt his shoulder. Freddy / Ron " Freddy "
2. He might need to have an operation. Freddy / Ron
" Freddy "
3. He wants his friend to try something new. Freddy / Ron
" Ron ?"
4. He has tried acupuncture and thinks it's helpful. Freddy / Ron
" Ron "
5. He wants to know how to contact the acupuncturist. Freddy / Ron " Freddy ?"

d. What happens next in the video? Read the scriptwriter's note. Then write the continuation of the video script.

Woman walks by and notices Freddy and Ron...

Woman: _____

Ron/Freddy: _____

Woman: _____

Ron/Freddy: _____

Woman: _____

Ron/Freddy: _____

Woman: _____

Ron/Freddy: _____

Common Sense, Not Blind Faith

a. Do you remember the text from the computer lesson? Answer the following questions.

1. What attitude does the writer express toward the medical profession in the first paragraph?

The writer feels that people should not have blind faith and should do some research before agreeing to a treatment.

2. How does the writer explain the problem of modern Western medicine in the second paragraph?

The writer explains that patients in the West often don't get medical treatment quickly enough.

3. Which two reasons does the writer give to explain why people in the West are attracted to alternative medicine in the third paragraph?

One reason given is the fear of surgery and of strong medication, and the second reason is that many people turn to alternative medicine when faced with a hopeless situation

4. Which third reason does the writer add in the fourth paragraph?

The third reason that the writer gives is that alternative treatments seem to be less harmful or dangerous than surgery.

5. Which reason does the writer give to explain why all medical treatment can be risky in the final paragraph?

The reason the writer gives is that all of us can make mistakes, including doctors and healers.

6. With which message does the writer finish the article?

The writer reminds the readers that there are millions of patients who are healthy today because of conventional Western medicine

b. Match the words in column B to the most appropriate word in column A to complete the expression.

A	B
1. a second	a. faith
2. bedside	b. healers
3. blind	c. manner
4. common	d. opinion
5. dangerous	e. sense
6. natural	f. treatments

1. d 2. c 3. a 4. e 5. f 6. b

c. Read a debate between Dr. Robert, a conventional Western doctor, and, Tony Lee, a natural healer. Complete the dialogue with words and expressions from activity b.

Dr. Robert: Mr. Lee, you and your fellow (1) natural healers cannot possibly offer all the medical treatments that we can.

Tony Lee: Dr. Robert, some of those are considered to be (2) dangerous, treatments such as surgery and cancer treatment.

Dr. Robert: Mr. Lee, I believe that whereas we have scientific evidence to support our treatments, you rely more on people having (3) blind faith in yours.

Mr. Lee: Actually, Dr. Robert, I prefer to think that my patients are using their
(4) common sense when they choose a treatment of massage and a change of diet over a treatment of drugs with bad side-effects.

Dr. Robert: If one of my patients has any doubts about a treatment I have recommended, he or she can always ask another doctor for a (5) second opinion.

Mr. Lee: That is true with us, too, but I believe we are better than conventional doctors in one important aspect.

Dr. Robert: I can't imagine what that could be.

Mr. Lee: According to research, 7 out of 10 sick people prefer to be visited by a natural healer to a doctor. We have a much better (6) bedside manner.

Dr. Robert: I believe we'll just have to agree to disagree.

Additional Reading

Global Reading

1. Read the title of the additional reading. What information do you expect to find in the article?

information about complementary and alternative medicine

2. Read the first sentence of the first paragraph. What is the writer's purpose?

The writer's purpose in this sentence is to give the readers a definition of complementary and alternative medicine.

3. Read the first sentence of the second paragraph. What is the purpose of asking a question?

The writer's purpose in asking this question is to establish the context and to get the readers interest

Do you expect the writer to answer the question?

4. Read the first sentence of the third paragraph. What will the writer discuss in this paragraph?

The writer will discuss the major types of complementary and alternative medicine.

5. The text continues by referring to four general types of alternative medicine. What are they?

They are: mind-body medicine, biologically-based therapies, manipulative and body-based methods, and energy therapies

Close Reading

1. The marker While in line 3 signals that the writer wants to emphasize the difference between two situations. What are the two things the writer contrasts?

The writer contrasts the difference between CAM therapies for which we have some scientific evidence and the fact that scientific studies are not complete.

2. What does the abbreviation "CAM" in line 3 refer to? CAM refers to complementary and alternative medicine.

3. In line 5, the writer uses the expression such as to give examples. What does the writer give examples of?

The writer gives examples of questions about the majority of CAM therapies that are yet to be answered through well-designed scientific studies.

4. The writer uses the expression in place of in line 10. What other expression in the paragraph means the same thing?

The other expression is "instead of" in line 11.

5. The writer uses the words apart from and earlier than in lines 14 and 15 to compare two separate things. What does the writer compare?

The writer compares the history and development of alternative medical systems and conventional medicine.

6. In the fourth paragraph, the writer uses commas to provide a list. What does the writer list?

The writer lists mind-body techniques that are still considered CAM

7. In line 30, the writer uses the word purportedly to express doubt. What does he express doubt about? The writer expresses doubt about the existence of energy fields that surround and penetrate the human body

Everything You Ever Wanted to Know About Complementary and Alternative Medicine

Complementary and alternative medicine, as defined by NCCAM, is a group of diverse medical and health care systems, practices and products that are not presently considered to be part of conventional medicine. While some scientific evidence exists regarding some CAM therapies, for the most part there are key questions that are yet to be answered through well-designed scientific studies - questions such as whether these therapies are safe and whether they work for the diseases or medical conditions for which they are used.

Are complementary medicine and alternative medicine different from each other? Yes. Complementary medicine is used together with conventional medicine. An example of a complementary therapy is using aromatherapy to help lessen a patient's discomfort following surgery. Alternative medicine is used in place of conventional medicine. An example of an alternative therapy is using a special diet to treat cancer instead of undergoing surgery, radiation, or chemotherapy that has been recommended by a conventional doctor.

What are the major types of complementary and alternative medicine? Alternative medical systems are built upon complete systems of theory and practice. Often, these systems have evolved apart from and earlier than the conventional medical approach used in the United States. Examples of alternative medical systems that have developed in Western cultures include homeopathic medicine and naturopathic medicine. Examples of systems that have developed in non-Western cultures include traditional Chinese medicine and Ayurveda.

Mind-body medicine uses a variety of techniques designed to enhance the mind's capacity to affect bodily functions and symptoms. Some techniques that were considered CAM in the past have become mainstream (for example, patient support groups and cognitive-behavioral therapy). Other mind-body techniques are still considered CAM, including meditation, prayer, mental healing, and therapies that use creative outlets such as art, music, or dance.

Biologically-based therapies in CAM use substances found in nature such as herbs, foods, and vitamins. Some examples include dietary supplements, herbal products, and the use of other so-called natural but as yet scientifically unproven therapies (for example, using shark cartilage to treat cancer).

Manipulative and body-based methods in CAM are based on manipulation and/or movement of one or more parts of the body. Some examples include chiropractic or osteopathic manipulation, and massage.

Energy therapies involve the use of energy fields. They are of two types:

- Biofield therapies are intended to affect energy fields that purportedly surround and penetrate the human body. The existence of such fields has not yet been scientifically proven. Some forms of energy therapy manipulate biofields by applying pressure and/or manipulating the body by placing the hands in, or through, these fields. Examples include Qi gong, Reiki, and Therapeutic Touch.
- Bioelectromagnetic-based therapies involve the unconventional use of electromagnetic fields, such as pulsed fields, magnetic fields, or alternating-current or direct-current fields.

E-mail: info@nccam.nih.gov Website: nccam.nih.gov

Comprehension Questions

1. Write a definition of complementary and alternative medicine.

One definition of complementary and alternative medicine is that it is a group of diverse medical and health care systems, practices and products that are not presently considered to be part of conventional medicine.

2. How much scientific evidence exists regarding complementary and alternative medicine?

For most CAM therapies, not enough scientific evidence exists.

3. What is the difference between complementary and alternative medicines?

While complementary medicine is used together with conventional medicine, alternative medicine is instead of conventional medicine.

4. Which examples of alternative medicine have become mainstream?

Examples of CAM therapies that have become mainstream are patient support groups and cognitive behavioral therapy

Which haven't?

5. List four types of mind-body techniques.

Four types of mind-body techniques are patient support groups, meditation, prayer, and mental health

Barbeque Burns

a. Do you remember the dialogue “Barbeque Burns”. Whice phrases are used:

to give advice: If I were you, I'd be more careful in the future. I think you should avoid having barbeques for a while to give an excuse: I'm usually very careful. This has never happened before.

b. Read the sentences about medical advice and the patient’s response. Decide which each person is expressing. Mark the correct column.

	Giving advice	Giving an excuse
1. If I were you, I'd avoid lifting heavy weights.	X
2. I guess I was in the wrong place at the wrong time.		X
3. I can't believe it happened to me.		X
4. We believe you should give up smoking.	X
5. Wouldn't it be a good idea to take it easy?	X
6. This has never happened to me before.		X

c. Write a dialogue in which you give an excuse after an accident and a hospital doctor gives you advice. Use the phrases from activity b. to help you.

Hospital doctor: You'll be pleased to hear that you will recover quickly.
You: This has never happened to me before.
Hospital doctor: If I were you, I'd avoid lifting heavy weights.
You: I can't believe it happened to me
Hospital doctor: Wouldn't it be a good idea to take it easy?
You: Yes, doctor, yes I will.

d. Practice your dialogue with a partner.

More Infinitives: Review

a. The computer lesson reviews infinitives. Match the sentences below to most appropriate pictures.

1. He appears to have disappeared again.
2. The head of the department doesn't like to be called at home in the middle of the night.
3. The operation is reported to have been a complete success.
4. Be serious, dude! That drug is not believed to have had any serious side effects in the past!

a. 3

b. 4

c. 1

d. 2

b. Match ends of the sentences in column B to the beginnings in column A.

A	B
1. The patient seems to be angry about...	a. given presents by grateful patients.
2. The acupuncturist appears to have forgotten to...	b. opened a new ward for eating disorders.
3. The nurses love to be...	c. the doctor's poor bedside manner.
4. Drastic surgery is considered to be a...	d. become more acceptable these days.
5. The hospital is reported to have...	e. sterilize the needles.
6. Alternative medicine appears to have...	f. dangerous treatment.

1. c 2. e 3. a 4. f 5. b 6. d

c. Read the following situations. Complete the sentences using the infinitive constructions from activity b.

1. The patients are refusing to take their medicine today.

They seem reached this decision because the medicine has an awful taste.

2. The nurses in the maternity ward always look more tired than the others.

They are considered to be the hardest working nurses in the hospital.

3. The young doctors work very long hours at the hospital.

For example, some of them are reported to have worked more than 60 hours last week.

4. Patients who are recovering from surgery respond well to a good bedside manner.

They love to be told everything about the operation and how soon they will be able to leave the hospital.

Unit 8

How Smart Are You?

Quiz

a. Do you remember the quiz program from the computer lesson. Answer the following questions about the program.

1. How does the title of the quiz program reflect the kinds of questions asked?

The title refers to the past, present, and future.

2. How does the quizmaster ask the questions? Write the question words.

What kind...? Which...? What...? Name... In what way...?

3. Which questions did you know the answers to?

Accept all truthful answers

b. After the program, Rachel and Jason talked about their experience. Complete the conversation with appropriate words and phrases below.

technology • energy • population • recycling • rules • space • turn • winner

Rachel: So, tell me, Jason, how do you feel about the program?
Jason: Well, when Paula assumed that we both knew the (1) rules at the beginning of the program, she wasn't entirely correct.
Rachel: What do you mean? You played correctly. In fact, your only mistake was when you didn't know the (2) technology question.
Jason: That was the problem. I knew the technology question. I just didn't know there was a time limit. I was about to say the answer, but i lost my (3) turn.
Rachel: But you still did really well on the program. You answered the solar (4) energy and garbage (5) recycling questions correctly.
Jason: And I knew your questions about outer (6) space and the country with the largest (7) population too.
Rachel: So what are you complaining about?
Jason: Isn't it obvious? I wanted to be the (8) winner!

c. Write five questions that could be used in the next broadcast of "Yesterday, Today, and Tomorrow". Have your classmates try to answer them.

Starting Young

a. What can we assume about Marina, Mrs. Smythe, her parents, and her classmates?
Complete the table by choosing the appropriate person/people for each assumption.

Assumption	Person/People
1. They are very grateful for her help in the classroom.	Marina's classmates
2. They left Russia less than two years ago.	Marina and her parents
3. She likes to help people.	Marina
4. She believes the new immigrant students will learn English quickly.	Mrs. Smythe
5. They don't know English as well as their daughter does.	Marina's parents

b. How do the teacher and the language specialist express their thoughts? Write the appropriate expressions and sentences.

1. How does Mrs. Smythe know which language is Marina's mother tongue?

When I listen to Marina talk in her native language, it's quite obvious that she is Russian

2. How does she compliment Marina's English? _____

3. How does she make a prediction? _____

4. How does Dr. Davis describe young children's language abilities?

5. How does she generalize the point?

c. Circle the word that does not collocate with the verbs in bold.

1. join	a class	a group	a decision	a company
2. translate	a telephone	schoolwork	a document	a language
3. pronounce	a sentence	words	a fact	a name
4. sign up	customers	kids	contestants	papers
5. practice	speaking	English	specialist	writing

d. Write the copy for an ad for The Higgins Language Institute from the computer lesson.

The Higgins Language Institute

There are currently seven Higgins Language Schools (1) throughout the country and by this time next year there will be (2) fourteen.

We aim at teaching (3) young children foreign languages.

We can teach them from a choice of languages, including

(4) Spanish and French.

Now's your chance to take advantage of your child's abilities to pronounce

(5) foreign words correctly and to (6) memorize new words.

Sign your child up now!

E-mail us at Higginslanguageinstitute@vector1.com

Dance Posters

a. Do you remember the dialogue in the computer lesson. Mark who did what.

	The Manager	The Employee
1. makes a suggestion	X
2. agrees to the suggestion		X
3. gives an order	X
4. makes an excuse		X
5. makes an alternative suggestion	X
6. compliments		X

b. How do the speakers in the computer lesson express themselves?

1. How does the manager recommend a course of action?

I think we should start making the signs for tonight's dance.

2. How does the employee give less than full support?

Yes. I guess we should.

3. How does the manager allocate duties?

OK. You make the signs and I'll take care of the passengers.

4. How does the employee indicate her rejection of the duty?

But I hate making signs.

5. How does the manager sympathize?

So do I.

6. How does the manager describe an alternative?

I have an idea. Let's see if we have any left over from the last cruise.

7. How does the employee compliment the manager?

That's a good idea. I hadn't thought of that

- c. You are the manager. Read the employee's responses and fill in the missing sentences. Use the expressions in activity b. to help you.

You: (1) I think we should start preparing the tables.

Employee: Right, boss, I agree we should start preparing the tables right away.

You: (2) OK. You make up the guest list and I'll set the tables.

Employee: But I prefer setting the tables to making up the guest list.

You: (3) So do I. Wait! I have an idea. Let's see if we have an old but appropriate guest list left over from the last occasion.

Employee: That's a great idea. Let's see if we have an old but appropriate guest list.

You: (4) That's why I'm the manager

Employee: And I guess that's why I'm only an employee.

Additional Reading

Global Reading

1. Read the title of the additional reading text. What issues do you think the writer will discuss in this article? The writer will probably discuss the problems writers face when they write in a foreign language.

Do you know of any writers who write in a foreign language? _____

The second part of the answer depends on your students' knowledge

2. Read the first two sentences of the first paragraph. Do they add information related to the title? _____ What is the purpose of the writer in telling this story? _____

They don't add information. The writer's purpose is to stress that Chinese writers might write in English.

3. Read the first sentence of the second paragraph. How does this sentence shed light on the title? This sentence gives the readers the name of the writer and how many books and novels he has written in English.

4. Read the first two sentences of the third paragraph. What reason does it give for writing a novel in a foreign language? _____

The reason given is the nature of the Chinese language, which is highbrow and detached from the everyday language of the people.

5. Read the first two sentences of the fourth paragraph. What difficulties does it refer to?

The difficulties have been the sacrifices that the writer has made, leaving behind his first language and his Chinese name.

6. Read the last paragraph. What is the writer's message? _____

The writer in the story tells the readers that good writing depends on discerning your good writing from the bad and on drawing strength from the masters in some small way.

Close Reading

1. In lines 3-4, the writer uses the words "no gulf greater than" to make a comparison. Crossing a gulf means doing something difficult. What two difficult things does the writer compare? The writer compares the difficulties of traveling a long distance and those of acquiring a
2. What purpose does the dash (-) in line 7 serve?
The dash signals examples of what he has written.
3. In line 11, the writer uses the words as though to describe a similar experience. Which other experience does Ha Jin compare his reason to write to? Ha Jin compares his reason for writing with trying to
4. In line 15, the writer uses the word concerned to express a worry. What worries the Chinese writer? Ha Jin worried that his original name would be difficult for English speakers to pronounce
5. In line 21, the writer uses the expression of course to indicate that something is obvious. What obvious thing does the writer describe? The obvious thing is that Ha Jin can still confuse the two
6. In line 26, Ha Jin uses the word because in order to explain something. What does the Chinese writer try to explain? Ha Jin explains that life is impossible to predict
7. In line 27, Ha Jin uses the word but to contrast two things. What is contrasted?
Ha Jin contrasts the intelligence of people whom he knew many years ago and their failure to get on with their lives
8. In line 30, Gish Jen uses the expression instead of to describe an alternative. Which two alternatives are described?
The two alternatives are looking to masters or to overturn something
9. In lines 36, Ha Jin uses the construction you have to four times in order to describe a process. Which process is described?
The process of writing well is described.
10. In the last sentence of the article, Ha Jin uses the expression that's all. What does it refer to?
It refers to drawing strength from the masters in his own small way.

Writing Novels in a Foreign Language

An American child who begins digging in his backyard and doesn't stop will eventually "end up in China." The Chinese have no comparable saying - no one digs toward North America. Ha Jin has come to Atlanta from the far side of the planet, but in getting here he has crossed no gulf greater than the one between his first and second languages. Written Chinese, "Hanzi," uses an alphabet of over 30,000 characters. But even the term "alphabet" is misleading, because it suggests a letter-based, rather than word-based, system.

Jin has now published six books in English - two books of poetry, two books of short stories, and two novels. The poems in his forthcoming collection, "Wreckage," concern China's ancient past and rough passage into modernity. Although they are full of violence and upheaval, he says, they are in part the products of a filial feeling toward the language - "a kind of guilt I feel over having abandoned my mother tongue. I think I had to write these poems for psychological reasons. It's as though I'm trying to pay a debt."

Jin was determined to write, and increasingly interested in fiction. For both practical and aesthetic reasons - written Chinese is "very highbrow and detached from the spoken word," he once told a reporter - he chose to make English the language of his creative work. Concerned that the name Xuefei didn't suggest an obvious pronunciation to the English-reading eye, he adopted Ha Jin when he began publishing in American journals. Jin says he's now able to think in English "most of the time." "But when I'm not really paying attention," he says, "very often Chinese comes out. Yesterday I was with a Chinese friend at a restaurant. Suddenly, I spoke Chinese to the waitress." He laughs. "And I dream half and half."

It's not surprising, of course, that Jin still finds himself subconsciously straddling two cultures. The things he has left behind for the sake of his writing - his first language, his first name - have been fundamental, the sacrifices utter. Asked if 25 years ago he could have foreseen himself teaching at a university in Atlanta, Georgia, Jin laughs again. "I'd never heard of Georgia," he says. "I'd never heard of Atlanta. I hadn't even heard of Boston. But I'm here now and I'm not surprised, because life is always unpredictable. Who knows where we will go? But I feel very fortunate. In the army, I knew a lot of young men and women with a lot of potential - extremely intelligent people. But they didn't get on in their lives because they didn't have the opportunity."

Chinese-American novelist Gish Jen once made an observation when speaking of Ha Jin. "The whole idea of looking to masters instead of overturning something is very Chinese," she told a New York Times reporter. "On some level, Ha Jin has chosen mastery over genius. It's as if he said, 'I am going to make something like that.' This never happens with American writers. We are too beset with the anxiety of influence."

"Maybe this sounds strange," he says of the writing task now before him, "but I don't expect this to be a magnificent, brilliant novel. I just want it to be a decent novel. From story writing I've learned that you have to write a lot, and you have to write well and you have to write poorly, and you have to be able to discern what's good and what's bad. From there, it's just a matter of drawing strength from the masters in your own small way. That's all I can really hope to do."

Comprehension Questions

1. What does the writer consider to have been Ha Jin's greatest challenge in his writing career?

The acquisition of a new language

2. How does Ha Jin explain his motivation to write poetry?

He explains that he feels guilty about abandoning his mother tongue

3. Why did Ha Jin change his name from Xuefei?

English speakers could not pronounce his name correctly

4. Who does Ha Jin compare himself to and why?

He compares himself to extremely intelligent young men and women who did not get on in their lives because they did not have the opportunity. He, on the other hand, was fortunate.

5. How does Gish Jen explain one difference between Ha Jin's writing and the writing of American writers?

American writers seek something new away from influences and Ha Jin looks to the masters.

6. What factors does Ha Jin believe there are which allow writers to write well?

These factors include writing a lot, discerning what is good and looking to the masters for strength

More Future: Review

a. Match the picture to the dialogue.

1. "Who will you be translating for you at this time tomorrow?" b__

"I'll be translating for the General Secretary, as the Hungarian representative speaks." ____

2. "By the time you are 60, will you have translated all of Shakespeare's work into Tibetan?"

"I've translated it all by the time you are 60!" c__

3. "Will he be waiting for the order at this time next month?"

"Ask him if they'll have sent the order by next week." a__ a.

b.

c.

b. Match the stems in column A with the most appropriate endings in column B.

A	B
1. In ten years' time, I'll still be working on...	a. studying another two languages at the Sorbonne in Paris.
2. I imagine at that time I'll be...	b. officially retired from the U.N. as two veteran interpreters.
3. In fifteen years' time, I expect my young trilingual son will be...	c. my translation of Pushkin's work from Russian into Swahili.
4. By the year 2015, my parents will have...	d. become a father again and who knows - this one might be quadrilingual.
5. By the end of this year, I'll have...	e. finished translating the poems.

1. c 2. e 3. a 4. b 5. d

c. Make some predictions about your English language skills in the future.

- 1. I'll have started the next course by
- 2. I'll be speaking English on my next vacation in
- 3. I'll have started dreaming in English by
- 4. I'll be using English like a native by

APPENDIX

Lesson Texts

Unit 1

Cultural Differences

Australia

This is the wild and beautiful landscape of Central Australia: the “outback,” which covers seventy-five percent of the continent. It seems to lie, still and untouched, in the silence of its first creation. And yet, according to the Australian Aborigines, the whole continent is a maze of song.

The Aboriginal myth of how the world began is extremely complex, but I’ll try to simplify it. In the beginning, which they call “Dreamtime,” the “Ancestors” created themselves from clay, and then began to sing the world into existence. They walked about, singing the names of everything they saw: birds, animals, plants, rocks, and rivers. As they walked, they left trails of footprints and songs. These are the famous “Songlines,” which form a profound part of the Aborigines’ religious beliefs.

Culture Crash

It’s almost thirty years now since Brad Perkins came into our small southern town like an ambulance on its way to a car crash. At the time, he had no idea that anyone had noticed him, but of course we had. He was from New York City, a place where manners, values, and the rules of courtesy were very different from ours. Up North, being direct is something positive. Down here, it’s considered rude.

During the years, Brad never realized that he was offending anyone. We now know that he never meant to. Once, Dr. Franklin invited Brad for Sunday dinner, not long after he’d arrived. Although he is actually quite reserved, Dr. Franklin likes to be known around town as a cultured man. He therefore felt the need to welcome Brad to town and show him some southern hospitality. Yet that meal caused such a problem for Brad that he almost had to leave town.

Looking back now, I can see that we were the ones who were being rude, and not Brad Perkins.

There were only six people at dinner, but what he did seemed to have been broadcast all over town by the next day. And, of course, everyone took offense. Later, Dr. Franklin agreed that they had gone overboard and had been too sensitive. As a rule, however, it is not customary for a guest to refuse a second helping in a southerner's home.

Brad Perkins will have been here for thirty years next June. We've come to admire him, and it's hard to imagine the place without him. We treat him just like one of us, but I guess we've just gotten used to people from up North. Over the years, we've tried to learn more about what's considered appropriate in the North. We realize now that they're not rude; they just communicate differently.

So Bored!

- I get so bored on beach holidays.
- Me, too!
- Every year my wife drags me on one.
- Mine, too!
- The worst part is, I hate the ocean.
- I know what you mean. I can't stand it, either.

Clauses of Result: Review

- You should hold the bat near its base so as to maximize the power of your swing.
- Thanks, Uncle Phil. Now that you're teaching me, I know I'll get on the team.
- You actually have a chance, kid, as long as you keep practicing.

Adjectives 5

Word	Definition	Example Sentence
bored, adj.	feeling a lack of interest in what you are currently doing	I am so bored on this vacation, all we do is sit around the hotel pool.
complex, adj.	complicated, not simple	The situation is more complex than we thought, so it will take us longer to come up with a solution.
cultured, adj.	knowing a lot about the arts like music and literature	I always felt my mother was very cultured because she took me to many concerts and plays when I was little.
direct, adj.	being very honest and to the point	I like it when people are direct with me and say what they mean.
fabulous, adj.	extremely good	I had a fabulous time at the party last night, I really enjoyed myself.
incomplete, adj.	not whole, unfinished	Your trip to New York would be incomplete without a visit to the Statue of Liberty.
profound, adj.	significant and meaningful	Traditional foods are a profound part of any culture.
reasonable, adj.	something that is fair, having good judgment	I feel I was being reasonable when I told Steve it was too late to be calling.
remain idle, exp	inactive, not in use	If even one machine in the factory remains idle, we will lose money.

Word	Definition	Example Sentence
reserved, adj.	shy, not talkative	Annie is reserved in large social settings, but is usually lots of fun with a few friends.
rough, adj.	unpleasant, difficult	Moving to a new country can be rough because of the new language and different culture.
sensitive, adj.	understanding and caring, easily offended	When I don't feel well, my husband is always so sensitive and takes good care of me.
significant, adj.	a large amount, something that is important or meaningful	Since the new university opened, there has been a significant increase in the town's population.
unpredictable, adj.	difficult to guess or prepare for a person's behavior or the outcome of a situation	I don't know how Martha will react to the news, she can be very unpredictable.
wild, adj.	free, natural and unconfined, undisturbed by humans	There are many wild flowers growing in the fields.

Unit 2

Life In The City

A Mystery

- Husband: Buster, here boy, Buster.
- Wife: What's going on?
- Husband: Honey, don't get mad. But there's been a disappearance.
- Wife: Disappearance? What do you mean?
- Husband: Buster! He's disappeared. I took him for a walk. When we got home, I went to the kitchen to make some coffee, turned around and Buster was gone.
- Wife: Gone? How can that be? Did you look for him?
- Husband: Of course. I looked all over the house - upstairs and downstairs. I called for him. I whistled for him. He's nowhere to be found.
- Wife: I'm really worried! There's a rumor going around about a gang stealing pedigree dogs. Buster is worth a lot of money.
- Husband: That's it! The thieves must have broken in whilst I was making coffee, and stolen Buster! Let's call the police!
- Wife: Wait, before you start calling the police... I think I might have a different version of events.
- Husband: Really? What's that?
- Wife: Well, did you forget to close the back door again? That's what I thought. I'll go around to the neighbors to look for him...
- Husband: The evidence is not conclusive! I may be innocent!

Adams Murder Mystery Update

By Tina Adler

By tomorrow morning, Gregory Adams, the famous author of "Murder Mysteries," will have been on trial at the State Court. Hopefully, he will have told the court what he has refused to tell journalists up until now. As of tomorrow, the truth will be revealed and the rumor that Gregory Adams murdered his wife will be proven either true or false. Adams, a man with no previous criminal record, naturally hopes to be found innocent, and sources close to the family say he is quietly confident. As for the public, however, opinion is divided.

Many people seem to be convinced that the rumor that Adam "got rid of" his wife is no exaggeration. It is common knowledge that he has been married three times, and that in each case his wife mysteriously disappeared.

Ms. Mira Holmes, Adams' former neighbor and a well-known local film-maker, seems to know the man very well. Many believe that her version of events is quite conclusive.

"What the tabloid headlines say is only the tip of the iceberg," Ms. Holmes says firmly. "I have been investigating the tragic disappearance of Barbara Adams for many months now. I plan to make a documentary about it one day. Barbara disappeared on the 5th of January, just like Bonnie Adams, and Bettina Adams before her. My theory is that Mr. Adams' books hold the key to the truth. In his books, the murderer's wives all had names which began with the letter "B" and they all had large insurance policies. Finally, their murders always took place on the 5th of January."

Others seem to feel that this solution is too simple. They claim that someone else, perhaps a dissatisfied reader, got hold of the idea from Adams' books.

Mira Holmes's claims have only added to the scandal surrounding the Adams trial. Tomorrow, the final chapter in this tragedy will be played out in the State courtroom, and many people are interested to see how this mystery ends.

How Awful!

- My wife's car was just stolen.
- Oh! How awful!
- I guess that's the way it goes sometimes.
- Yeah. Life in the big city can be rough.
- Actually, it could have been worse.
- Really? How?
- It could have been my car that got stolen!

More Future: Future Perfect

- Joe, if the Chainsaws win the game today, they will have won the championship for the third year in a row.
- Yes, but I don't think they'll win.

Crime 3

Word	Definition	Example Sentence
beat up, v.	to violently and purposefully punch or kick someone many times	Did you hear about the old lady who got beaten up and had her purse stolen?
claim, v.	to say something that is unproven and can be argued	Phil claimed someone stole his sunglasses, but I think he simply misplaced them.
conclusive, adj.	describing a clear and definitive ending to a situation or question	After the police checked the area, no conclusive evidence was found.
courtroom, n.	a place where a judge decides the final outcome of legal situations	As we entered the courtroom, the judge told us to take our seats so he could begin.
criminal record, n.	a formal list the authorities keep on anyone who has committed a crime	Before I got the job at the law firm, they had to make sure I didn't have a criminal record.
disappearance, n.	the process of passing from sight, becoming lost, vanished	Police are investigating the disappearance of a seventeen-year-old girl.
exaggeration, n.	a statement that stretches the truth, making the situation seem more extreme than it really is	Although the boy did steal some candy from the shop, to say he is a criminal is an exaggeration.
found (innocent / guilty), exp.	when a jury decides based on evidence and statements from witnesses whether a person has committed a specific crime or not (innocent if he has not committed the crime and guilty if they decide he has)	The town was shocked when the man was found innocent of the murder of two of its residents.
hold the key to the truth, idiom	a clue or specific piece of information that will lead to the real events of a situation being understood	The contents of that box hold the key to the truth about what really happened to her mother.

Word	Definition	Example Sentence
innocent, adj.	not responsible for committing a crime	I think the woman stole the perfume, but she says she's innocent.
on trial, exp.	when a person is being judged in a court of law for a crime or crimes	Mr. Hawkins is about to go on trial for his crimes.
proven true or false, exp.	to show something to be correct or incorrect based on facts	Until her statement is proven true or false, we are unable to comment on it.
public opinion, n.	the general view of the overall population on a particular issue	According to public opinion, efforts to reduce violence in schools have not been successful.
rumor, n.	information that may or may not be true	I heard a rumor that she left the country.
version of events, exp.	one possible order of how things happened	Her version of events is quite different from mine.

Unit 3

Dangerous Sports

Interview with a Climber

- Max Redman: Hi I'm Max Redman from Channel 1 news. Today I'm interviewing the daring Martha Moore who's going to tell us all about rock climbing.
- Martha Moore: Martha, you've risked your life for this sport. Can you tell us why?
- Martha Moore: Well, Max, I've always loved adventure. And a few years ago I went to a local climbing gym, just like this one, and I was hooked! After a couple of months training inside, I decided to start climbing real rocks outside.
- Max Redman: You've made some very daring climbs in both the United States and Europe. That takes a lot of nerve. Don't you get scared?
- Martha Moore: Of course I'm afraid sometimes. But I don't let myself think about falling.
- Max Redman: Do you ever have second thoughts before a climb?
- Martha Moore: Not really, I view each new climb as a challenge.
- Max Redman: So what do you love most about climbing?
- Martha Moore: I love overcoming physical challenges and pushing the limits of what I can do. There's nothing better than the feeling you get when you complete a really difficult climb. So Max, are you ready for your first climbing lesson?
- Max Redman: Ready as I'll ever be!!

Just in Time

The Emergency Medical Parachutists are a team of doctors, each of whom has a pilot's license and is experienced in parachuting. They give first aid to injured people who cannot be reached any way other than by plane. Today the team was made up of Elena, Hank and Nick. Each one had received the same phone call, asking them to meet at the E.M.P. base.

"OK," said Nick. "We'll be taking off immediately." "Who are we looking for?" asked Elena.

"Three teenage mountain climbers," answered Nick. "They fell off the edge of a cliff. One kid seems to have been hurt badly. Another has a broken leg and the third one appears to have gotten only minor injuries."

"They must be panicking now, thinking nobody will ever find them," Hank said.

Once in the sky, Elena searched carefully. Then she pointed down. "I see them!" she exclaimed.

"We're going to have to be very cautious near those rocks," said Nick. "I'll be circling up here until you contact me. Good luck, guys!"

Elena and Hank jumped from the plane and landed near the boys.

"You came just in time," said one of the frightened teenagers. "Eddie's in pretty bad shape."

Hank found Eddie, who was lying on a rock ledge. He quickly sized up the situation. "It's a risk to move him at this point, but we have no choice," he said. "He appears to have several broken bones." Turning to the other two friends, he said, "You know, this adventure of yours could have had an even worse ending if we hadn't found you today."

All three teenagers were taken to the hospital and when Eddie was well enough, they appeared on a national TV talk show. They warned other young adventurers against going on foolish expeditions like the one which had led to their accident. "We thought we were being so daring and clever. Sure, it takes nerve to do what we did, but we were stupid to have gone near the edge of the cliff. We could have been killed," said Eddie. "In fact, I found out afterwards that I almost was."

"Don't take chances, even if you're familiar with the area that you're headed for," added his friend. "Study your destination on the map and take along all the equipment you may need. Then your trip can be a thrilling adventure and not a terrifying experience."

What Happened?

- Thanks for picking me up, Cindy.
- What happened?
- I broke my leg playing football.
- Oh! What an awful thing to happen.
- That's not the worst part. The doctor said I shouldn't play football anymore.
- What a shame! You love football.
- Well, now I'll have more time to spend with you.
- Great!

More Infinitives: Other Uses

- You seem to have enjoyed that meal. You certainly ate enough!
- Yes, I did. I think I'll need to be carried out of here.

Sports 3

Word	Definition	Example Sentence
a lot of nerve, exp.	having the courage to do something risky	It takes a lot of nerve to participate in extreme sports like skydiving.
adventurer, n.	someone who likes to have exciting and dangerous experiences	I am not an adventurer like my friend Tom, so I decided not to join him on his camping trip.
altitude, n.	how much above sea level something is	It can be very thrilling to jump from such a high altitude.
bad ending, exp.	a situation that doesn't end well	The fight that broke out between the teams had a bad ending and one of the players was taken to the hospital.
daring, adj.	risky and brave	Lisa decided to be daring and go on the advanced hiking trail.
dive, v.	to jump headfirst into water or the air	I have always been afraid to dive from the diving board.
expedition, n.	a journey to a specific place to accomplish a specific goal	We went on a fishing expedition last year to Trout Lake.
parachute, n.	a big sturdy piece of cloth that a person uses to float from the sky after jumping out of a plane	Suddenly, we saw people with parachutes in the sky and we knew we had been saved.
pass up an offer, exp.	to decline an invitation or proposition	I decided to pass up the offer to go skiing this weekend and stay home instead.
risk your life, exp.	to do something that could potentially result in your death or serious injury	People who dive from high cliffs are risking their lives.

Word	Definition	Example Sentence
second thoughts, n.	a hesitation about a decision you have made or something you are about to do	I'm having second thoughts about joining the soccer team this year.
size up the situation, exp.	to analyze a particular set of events	After I fell, I quickly sized up the situation and realized I had broken my ankle.
skydiving, n.	a sport that involves jumping from an airplane and freefalling until you use your parachute to float safely to the ground.	My cousin went skydiving once and he said it felt like flying!
take your chances, exp.	to do something even though there might be risks	I decided to take my chances and try out for the volleyball team.
thrilling, adj.	extremely exciting	Water skiing is a very thrilling experience!

Unit 4

Complaints

Call-In

- Host: "Welcome to Interview Line." This week, callers are invited to interview our special guest, the famous journalist Dan Swathmore. Mr. Swathmore, more commonly known as "Dan the Man," will soon be retiring after more than thirty years of writing for "The National Reporter." His next project is said to be a documentary about the scandalous world of tabloid newspapers, a subject with which he is very familiar. Caller One, you're on the air.
- Doris: Hello. My name is Doris. Dan, isn't it true that your information is based more on rumors than on what is actually known to have happened?
- Dan: Not at all. In fact, as soon as I get wind of a story, Doris, I follow it up by getting hold of the people who are reported to have been involved, and gathering as many facts from them as possible.
- Host: We have another caller. Joanne, thanks for joining us.
- Joanne: I agree this Doris. How can we trust you? After all, you journalists always refuse to reveal your sources. You take advantage of people's personal tragedies just to make catchy headlines. I'm convinced the tabloid bosses encourage you to break the law by exaggerating the truth to suit their purposes.
- Dan: I can only speak for myself, Joanne. I research my articles very carefully and always have hard evidence to back up any claims I make. As for what people call "the truth of a story," my view is that it has many versions, and my job is to reveal as many of those as I can.
- Host: Thank you all for contributing to "Interview Line." I think the issues raised tonight were just the tip of the iceberg. Join us next week, when we will be continuing with the topic of freedom of the press.

Complaint

666 Oak street

October 21st

Mr. Larry McCann, President
Grumble's Department Store
P.O. Box 5554
New York, NY 11001

Dear Mr. McCann,

I'd like to bring to your attention the events of the past few weeks concerning a washing machine which I purchased from your appliance department on September 14th from your appliance department. The machine was delivered and installed several days later, but since that time has failed to work.

Before using the machine, I read the instruction book and followed the instructions to the letter. They didn't seem to be written in a complicated way - I usually have a head for these things, but for some reason the machine didn't work. At that point I re-read the directions so as to be sure I had set everything correctly. However, the machine remained idle.

A label on the back of the machine listed a phone number to call in case of problems. I called and spoke to a technician, who gave me step-by-step instructions how to turn on the machine. But the whole process was a waste of time. The machine still wouldn't work.

Several days later, another technician actually came to my home to try to figure out what was wrong. I hoped to be doing my laundry by the time he left, but he could not get the machine to work, either. He told me I had two options: either to have the machine repaired or exchange it for a new one. Since this machine is brand-new and has never worked, I felt I deserved a new one.

I called your store and was told that the normal procedure was to write a letter to the department manager explaining the problem. I did this several weeks ago, but my letter appears to have been ignored.

Mr. McCann, by the time you get this letter, an out-of-order washing machine will have been sitting in my house for nearly six weeks. This whole episode has been a pain in the neck for me. The machine needs to be replaced immediately. If it is not, my lawyer will be getting in touch with you. Please consider this a final warning.

Sincerely,
Felicity Dundee

Expensive Boutique

- I can't stand these expensive little boutiques.
- I know. They charge so much for so little.
- I'm getting tired of shopping. Let's get out of here and go eat.
- Great idea! I'm starving.
- Wait! Look! Isn't that a fabulous little black dress?
- Absolutely! And it's on sale, too!

More Future: Future Progressive

- In about an hour from now, we'll be parachuting through the air, too.
- I can't believe I let you talk me into this. You know I hate doing risky things.
- Don't worry so much. I'll be jumping with you and holding your hand all the way down.

Journalism

Word	Definition	Example Sentence
back up a claim, exp.	to support a statement with facts	It is important that journalists are always able to back up any claims they make.
catchy headline, exp.	interesting article titles in a newspaper or magazine to make readers want to know more	I need to come up with a catchy headline for my next news story.
contribute, v.	to give time, money, or effort to a cause or organization	My mother has contributed so much to this family by taking care of everyone and always being available to us.
documentary, n.	an informative film about a particular event or topic	I saw a very interesting documentary about deep-sea fishing last night.
follow up on a story, exp.	to get more information about a certain story	I need to follow up on that story I heard about the little boy who saved a man's life.

Word	Definition	Example Sentence
freedom of the press, exp.	the legal right of newspapers and magazines to write about whatever they choose	Although I believe in freedom of the press, I also think there are certain boundaries that shouldn't be crossed.
gather facts, exp.	to collect true pieces of information	First I gather the facts, then I start writing.
get wind of a story, exp.	to hear or learn about a particular news story or event	I got wind of the story too late, so I wasn't able to release the news first.
hard evidence, n.	real proof	There is no hard evidence that supports your theory.
magazine issue, n.	a collection of stories, pictures, and ads usually in color for a specific week or month	I thought this month's magazine issue wasn't as interesting as usual.
raise an issue, exp.	topics that were brought up	Some interesting issues were raised in today's newspaper.
reveal sources, exp.	to share where you got information	Don't worry, I never reveal my sources so nobody will ever know that you gave me the information.
scandal, n.	a circumstance that involves important or famous people acting immorally or dishonestly and ruining their reputation	There have been so many scandals in that company, I don't know how they are still in business.
tabloid newspapers, n.	small newspapers that usually include lots of stories about the private lives of famous people	I feel sorry for that actor because they are always printing embarrassing pictures of him in the tabloid newspapers.
topic, n.	a specific subject that is written about or discussed	Next week's topic will be "Staying Healthy and Keeping in Shape".

Unit 5

Business Strategies

Ad

Are you annoyed by high interest rates? Do you ever need help keeping track of your financial records? Do you wish you could overdraw on your account without seeing your checks bounce? If you answered “yes” to any of the above questions, it’s time for you to check out “Bank-Plus” at ABC Finance Bank. For just a small monthly fee, you’ll get high-quality service to help you manage your bank account. But don’t take it from me. Listen to one of our satisfied customers: “At ABC Finance Bank, there’s always someone who helps me understand my statements and keeps an eye on my investments. The people there really care about me. Also, since the bank double-checks everything, errors which in the long run could cost me a lot of money are avoided. As long as my money is at ABC Finance Bank, my savings are secure.”

ABC Finance Bank likes to be known as the bank that cares about you as well as your money. That’s a bank to invest in. Why don’t you check us out? Now that you know more about us, you’ll be glad you did.

Request

Kara Moore
Youth Matters Ltd.
20 January

H. Morgenthal
General Manager
Natural Shoes Ltd.

Dear Mr. Morgenthal,

It has been some time since we were in contact. I hope that all is well with you. My annual presentation to the organization seems to have been well received, and by next month I will be managing the whole publications office. I want to thank you for your support and advice when we met last year. You helped me a lot.

One of my primary objectives for next year is to focus on reaching out to youth and getting them interested in environmental issues. Now that the environment has become a hot news topic, that should not be too difficult.

My idea is to create a youth magazine that would appeal to high school and university students. I would like the magazine to be known for its quality rather than its environmental subject matter. I have included an outline of the first proposed issue for your consideration.

I thought that your company, Natural Shoes, might be interested in giving money to support such a project. Since you depend on selling your products to youth, this could be a good way of reaching them. We are, therefore, offering you several full-page advertisements in our magazine.

Please take time to think the idea over, and then let me know what you decide.

All the best.

Sincerely yours,

Kara Moore

Publications Officer

Marketing Strategy

- So, Johnson, what do you think of my new marketing strategy?
- Personally, I think that it could be improved.
- Oh, really? What would you change?
- Well, I feel strongly that we must also target middle-aged men in this campaign.
- Hmmm. That's a smart suggestion, Johnson. Good thinking.

More Infinitives: Perfect

- The Mayan people are said to have had a very advanced civilization.
- Really?

Business

Word	Definition	Example Sentence
bounce a check, exp.	a term used to describe a check that cannot be cashed because there is not enough money in the account	This is the third time this month my check has bounced so I really need to get paid soon!
campaign, n.	an initiative by a company to attract customers and increase sales	The new marketing campaign has been very effective so far as there has been a 20% increase in sales this month.
double-check, v.	go over something twice to be sure it is correct	I double-check my account every month to make sure there aren't any extra charges.
full-page advertisement, n.	a large printed announcement in a magazine or newspaper that tells about a product or service	I saw a full-page advertisement in today's paper for a new electronics store.
in the long run, idiom	in the end or the final conclusion	We have to spend a lot of money on the renovations now, but in the long run it will all be worth it.
insurance policy, n.	an agreement you have with an insurance company	I got a good insurance policy from the company my brother works for.
interest rate, n.	the percentage of extra money you get if you invest a sum of money or that you pay if you have borrowed that money	It is so difficult to pay off a loan these days with such high interest rates.
investment, n.	money you put into something that will eventually result in you making more money	My accountant helps me choose the best investments.

Word	Definition	Example Sentence
keep track of, exp.	to manage something or someone closely	I find it easier to keep track of my account online.
marketing strategy, n.	a plan that includes the details of how and to whom a company will sell a product or service	If you want to be successful, it is important to have a good marketing strategy.
monthly fee, exp.	a specific amount of money you pay (once a month) for a service	I pay a monthly fee for my Internet service.
overdraw on your account, exp.	to use more money than you have in your bank account	I have to be careful not to overdraw on my account this month, so I'm trying not to spend so much money.
satisfied customer, n.	someone who purchases a product or service that he is happy with	As long as I get good service and decent rates, I'm a satisfied customer.
secure, adj.	relating to finances being safe and well-managed in a bank or investment	I am looking for a reliable bank where I can be certain my savings are secure.
statement, n.	review of your bank account activity for a period of time that includes money you have spent and received	It is important to check your bank statements every month to make sure there are no mistakes.

Unit 6

Communication

Soap Opera

- Narrator: Cathy wants to meet someone from a different culture. Now that a group of Mexican students has come to her university, Cathy makes a firm decision to meet one of them, and hopes to be included in some of their activities.
- Cathy: Hi there. As a rule, I don't talk to strangers, but I will be going to Mexico next summer. Mexican culture is so different from ours and I'm really interested in finding out all about it. I'm Cathy, by the way.
- Carlos: Hi. I really admire your interest in Mexico. My name's Carlos.
- Cathy: Wow! Taking into account that you've just arrived, your English seems to be fluent.
- Carlos: I like to be considered bilingual. I studied hard before I came. Learning the language of a new country is a must if you want to fit in.
- Cathy: I agree. Maybe you can help me with my Spanish. By the way, do you have one of those great Mexican hats? It would be quite appropriate for this hot summer we're having now.
- Carlos: No, I don't. Tell me, does everyone here think we all still wear those hats? It's a real generalization, you know.
- Cathy: Oh, I thought that it was customary to wear those hats in Mexico. Please don't take offense.
- Carlos: I just get offended when people stereotype me.
- Cathy: Sorry. Listen - why don't you come for dinner Friday?
- Carlos: OK. I'd enjoy some good American hospitality.
- Narrator: Will Cathy and Carlos fall in love? Will Carlos teach her Spanish? Find out next week on "Ups and Downs."

Personal

Dear Elaine,

Hi, there! How are you? I'm doing well up here in the north of Portugal, and I'm really beginning to make headway with my Portuguese.

Now that I've been here for six months, I'm finding it much easier to express myself, although I still have a problem with my pronunciation. It's exciting to speak another language besides English, and I hope that in six months' time I'll be speaking fluently. By then I will have been here a year, and will hopefully be speaking like a native. My plan is to be practically bilingual by the time I leave.

Anyway, this letter would be incomplete without a funny story. Correct? The local villagers hate to be thought of as inhospitable, so one family invited me for a meal last week. I decided to take advantage of the invitation (who turns down such an offer?) and I didn't eat all day, so that I'd be hungry. I knew enough Portuguese to get by, but I memorized a few extra expressions, just in case.

When I arrived for dinner, I was disappointed to see that they had made roast beef.

I tried to get it across to them that I didn't eat meat, but I guess I made too poor an attempt at it. When it became clear that I wasn't going to eat anything, the room was suddenly silent. The family didn't speak to me again until it was time for me to leave.

I asked my friend Marcos to speak to them for me and he found out that there had been a misunderstanding. It turns out that I had said and used words incorrectly, and they had interpreted it as some sort of criticism of THEIR meat.

Yesterday, however, I received a huge basket of fruit with a note saying "Practice your Portuguese!" Marcos translated it for me!

I know you'll laugh. Keep in touch.

Bill

Please Speak Up

- I'd like to speak to Mr. Carlton, please.
- I beg your pardon. What was that again?
- I said I want to speak to Mr. Carlton.
- I'm sorry, ma'am. I can't hear you very well. Can you please speak up?
- I'm already shouting. Is Mr. Carlton there?
- Ma'am, this connection is awful. Please call again.

Phrasal Verbs: Review

- Students, it's time for our dictionary quiz. Look up the meanings of these words, write them down and when you're finished, hand in your papers.

Cultural Communication

Word	Definition	Example Sentence
appropriate, adj.	acceptable or fitting for a particular situation	It is cold here this time of year so make sure you bring appropriate clothing.
courtesy, n.	sensitivity to others, politeness	Where I come from, it's common courtesy to hold the door for others.
criticism, n.	negative feedback	I wouldn't want to hear people's opinion about my cooking - I don't take criticism very well!
customary, adj.	accepted, commonly practiced in a certain culture or community	In our family, it is customary to take off your shoes before entering the house.
express yourself, v.	to be able to explain your feelings to others	I have trouble expressing myself when I get excited.

Word	Definition	Example Sentence
fit in, phrasal verb	to be accepted as part of a group	I moved to this city two months ago and I still don't feel like I fit in.
generalization, n.	an overall assumption about something or someone	People tend to make generalizations about certain cultures.
go overboard, idiom	to do a lot more than is necessary	Once people began arriving, we realized we had gone overboard with the food.
hospitality, n.	generosity by having guests in your home	Your brother never even thanked us for our hospitality before he left!
immigrant, n.	a person who moves to another country to live	My grandparents were Polish immigrants who came to this country for a better life.
myth, n.	an ancient story about the history of a certain place or people	There are many myths about how the world began.
religious beliefs, n.	what a person believes as it relates to God	Even today, people are still persecuted for their religious beliefs.
stereotype, v.	to make a statement or assumption about a certain group of people that may not be true about every member of that particular group	My parents always taught me not to stereotype people, but to see them as individuals.
take offense, exp.	to feel hurt as a result of something someone did or said	I hope Mary didn't take offense that I didn't invite her to the movie.
values, n.	a strict set of behaviors and rules a person lives by	I admire your family values.

Unit 7

Medical issues

Acupuncture Might Help

- Freddy: My shoulder is killing me.
- Ron: Yeah you do seem to be in a lot of pain.
- Freddy: Yeah, I know. I've been to the doctors twice already. I might need surgery.
- Ron: Well have you tried something different? Maybe acupuncture?
- Freddy: I don't know how I feel about acupuncture. Someone sticking tiny needles in my skin? Sounds painful.
- Ron: Actually it doesn't hurt. I've had it done a couple of times and I think it helped.
- Freddy: Really?
- Ron: Why don't you give my acupuncturist a call?
- Freddy: I guess I should. I'd do anything to avoid surgery. What's the number?
- Ron: I'll get it for you later..... ow...ow...oww...
- Freddy: Should I make an appointment for both of us?

Common Sense, Not Blind Faith

Reasonable people should not have blind faith in the medical profession. We all have to get more information about the treatments that we are given. We have to check out the medicine we take. We have to ask for second and even third opinions. We must do some research. We have to use our common sense and be informed about our health care.

While it is true that modern Western medicine has risks, we shouldn't reject it totally. The harm to the patients usually comes from not getting medical treatment immediately. Most people who get good medical care are healthier and live longer.

If this is the case, why has "alternative" health care become so popular in North America and Europe? Often fear of surgery or of strong medication motivates people to look for these alternatives. Many people think that these treatments will help even when the situation seems hopeless to Western doctors.

Alternative treatments are attractive because they seem less harmful and more sensitive to our needs. Surgeons perform dangerous surgery, but reflexologists, natural healers, or homeopathic doctors do not seem to give dangerous treatments. People don't think alternative care would kill anyone by mistake. In addition, everyone wants to be treated warmly. No one wants to go to a doctor in a cold, impersonal hospital clinic. Since some doctors don't have a nice "bedside manner," people like the attention they get from alternative healers.

Whether or not we decide to choose one type of treatment or another, we have to realize that there will be risks in almost any treatment. All doctors and healers are human beings who can make mistakes. They can miss things and waste valuable time. No matter what happens, we have to think about all of the different options. Remember, there are millions of patients who are alive and well today because of "conventional" Western medicine.

Barbeque Burns

- These burns aren't too bad.
- I guess I was lucky.
- If I were you, I'd be more careful in the future.
- I'm usually very careful. This has never happened before.
- I think you should avoid having barbeques for a while.
- I will, Doc. Thanks.

More Infinitives: Review

- Jules Gates is reported to have escaped from the local jail last night. Gates, who likes to be called by his nickname, Jay, appears to have headed north. The public is warned that Gates is dangerous and is believed to have stolen a gun.

Health 3

Word	Definition	Example Sentence
alternative medicine, n.	medical treatments that involve more natural forms of healing	I'm interested in learning about alternative medicine and perhaps becoming an acupuncturist.
bedside manner, n.	the way in which a doctor or healthcare professional interacts with you and how sensitive they are to your feelings	I've decided to switch doctors because I feel the one I am currently seeing does not have a good bedside manner.
blind faith, exp.	having trust in something without doing your own research	Some people don't bother looking into the medicine they are given from their doctors, they just take it with blind faith.
broken bones, n.	bones in a person's body that have been damaged by a fall or accident	When I went to the hospital after the accident, they told me I had a broken bone!
common sense, n.	good judgment	If you cut yourself and the bleeding doesn't stop, it's common sense to go to the emergency room.
conventional, adj.	most common or traditional	I'd rather use more conventional methods to treat my illness because I have more confidence that it will be effective.
homeopathic, adj.	describes a unique method of treating illnesses that involves natural medicines that include a small amount of the disease itself	After years of searching for a cure for her illness, my aunt finally found a homeopathic doctor that was able to help.
informed, adj.	knowledgeable	It is very easy to get informed about healthcare options online.

Word	Definition	Example Sentence
laser surgery, n.	a medical procedure using a laser to cut tissue	I'm getting laser surgery on my eyes tomorrow.
medical profession, n.	the field of healthcare	I have a lot of respect for those who work in the medical profession because it can be difficult to be around sick people all day.
reflexologist, n.	someone who practices reflexology, which is a method of healing by massaging the hands and feet	It is important to find a reflexologist that is licensed and has a lot of experience in the field.
second opinion, n.	another evaluation from a second doctor to see if the diagnosis and recommendation for treatment matches the first	I always encourage my patients to get a second opinion because I want them to feel secure that they are receiving the best quality care.
surgery, n.	a medical procedure that involves cutting into a part of the body	I had to have surgery on my knee a few years ago after I fell down several stairs.
technique, n.	a specific and skillful way of doing something	There are many new medical techniques being developed now.
Western medicine, n.	a style of medical treatments involving drugs and surgery most commonly used in North America and Western countries.	I think Western medicine is very important, however I also believe it can be combined with alternative treatments.

Unit 8

How Smart Are You?

Quiz

- Paula: Welcome to the weekly quiz program, "Yesterday, Today, and Tomorrow." Today's guests are high school students Jason and Rachel. You know the rules, so let's begin. Jason, by the time your children learn to drive, cars will probably be running on what kind of energy?
- Jason: Solar.
- Paula: Right! Now, Rachel, which country in the world has the largest population?
- Rachel: China.
- Paula: Correct. Next question. What kind of technology is now commonly used in performing surgery because of its accuracy, efficiency, and shorter recovery time for the patient?
- Jason: Uh...Uh...
- Paula: Time's up. Jason? Rachel?
- Rachel: Laser technology.
- Paula: Right. Rachel, your turn. Now that we have already been to the moon, we might soon be living in outer space. Name the planet closest to Earth.
- Rachel: Mars.
- Paula: Correct again! The first person to answer the next question will get twenty-five points. In what way can we drastically limit the amount of garbage that we throw away?
- Jason: By recycling it, so that it can be used again.
- Paula: Right, Jason. Twenty-five points to you. I'm afraid that's all we have time for. Rachel is today's winner. I'm Paula Turner, wishing all of you a good week. Join us again next week for "Yesterday, Today, and Tomorrow".

Starting Young

By S. Noriko

Seven-year-old Marina Schuman, a Russian immigrant, is called “the interpreter” by her classmates. Two new Russian students have recently joined Marina’s class, and most of their schoolwork needs to be translated for them. Since Marina is bilingual, she was chosen for the task.

“When I listen to Marina talk in her native language, it’s quite obvious that she is Russian,” said Mrs. Marge Smythe, Marina’s teacher. “However, when I hear Marina express herself in fluent English, it’s hard to believe that she has lived in the United States for less than two years. I hardly ever have to correct her. I’m sure her Russian classmates will also be speaking English fluently within a few months.” Language experts point out that learning a second language is much easier for children than for adults. “Children begin to put words together into sentences as early as age two,” says Dr. Annette Davis, a language specialist. “This pattern appears to be the same in children all over the world, no matter what language they’re learning. We believe that we can make more progress teaching a two-year-old than an older child or adult. The younger child has more of an ability to pronounce foreign words correctly, and children in general are better than adults at memorizing new words.”

Parents who want their children to practice speaking a second language at an early age can now sign their kids up at pre-school language institutes. One school known to have succeeded in teaching foreign languages to young children is the Higgins Language Institute. There are seven Higgins schools throughout the country, and they currently offer five languages for pre-schoolers, including Spanish and French. The concept is such a hit that within a year, the number of Higgins schools across the country will have doubled.

Besides teaching foreign languages, many pre-school language institutes teach English as a second language to immigrant children. By the time they reach elementary school, these youngsters will have learned to speak English fluently. Like Marina, some of these young people may even find themselves serving as interpreters and translators.

Dance Posters

- I think we should start making the posters for tonight's dance.
- Yes. I guess we should.
- OK. You make the posters and I'll take care of the passengers.
- But I hate making posters.
- So do I. Wait! I have an idea. Let's see if we have any left over from the last cruise.
- That's a good idea. I hadn't thought of that.
- That's why I'm the manager.

More Future: Review

- What do you think you'll be doing when you're 25?
- I'll be studying to be a doctor. How about you?
- By the time I'm 25, I'll have completed my studies and will be working at the U.N. as a translator.
- Good luck!

Learning a Language

Word	Definition	Example Sentence
become clear, exp.	something that begins to be realized or understood	After repeating my question several times, it became clear that the man didn't understand English.
bilingual, adj.	knowing two languages perfectly	Since my mom is Colombian and my Dad is American, I grew up bilingual - speaking both Spanish and English.
fluent, adj.	able to speak a language with very few mistakes	I'm almost fluent in Japanese.
get by, exp.	to manage with the bare minimum	When I first began learning English, I knew just enough to get by.
get something across, exp.	to explain a point so that it's understood	When I was traveling in Mexico, it was difficult to get it across to them that I didn't like spicy food!
interpret, v.	to translate from one language to another, to understand something in a certain way	My boss doesn't speak very clearly, so it's difficult to interpret what he says sometimes.
interpreter, n.	someone who helps two or more people who don't speak the same language understand each other	I worked as an interpreter at the American embassy for eight years.
like a native, exp.	doing something almost exactly the way the people who were born in that particular place do it, usually referring to speaking the language	Even though my husband was born in Russia, he speaks English like a native!
make headway, exp.	to make progress in something	I'm really starting to make headway with my German and I can now understand German movies.

Word	Definition	Example Sentence
memorize, v.	to study something until you know it by heart	I have to memorize 30 new vocabulary words before the test on Thursday!
misunderstanding, n.	a situation that was not correctly understood	I think there was a misunderstanding between us, I would like to clarify what I meant to say.
native language, n.	a person's first language	It's nice to be in a place where everyone speaks my native language.
pronounce, v.	to say a word correctly	I'm sorry, I always have trouble pronouncing your last name.
second language, n.	a language that you know or are learning other than your first language	I'm learning English as my second language.
translator, n.	someone who converts one language into another	I'm afraid we may need a translator when the foreign exchange student comes to stay with us!

